UNIFICATION UPHELD BY METHODISM'S HIGH COURT; GROUP OF LAYMEN LAUNCH CIVIL LEGAL ATTACK

LOTTERY WITNESS
CHARGES THREATS TO SWAY EVIDENCE

Negro Pick-Up Man Says Operator Shoved Gun in His Face To Force 'Lie' about R. P. Moore.

LITTLE BLACK BOOK FIGURES IN HEARING

Demand of Cash or Chain Gang Laid to Wife of Partner by Moore.

Testimony that a witness was threatened with a pistol and told to give information that R. P.
Moore had re-entered the lottery business was introduced today at a hearing on a motion to revoke the convicted "bug" operator's five-year suspended sentence.

The witness said he was threatened by Carl Poore, Moore's brother-in-law, who earlier in the day told him and Moore became partners in the lottery business shortly after Moore pleaded guilty last October.

The testimony followed a statement by Moore and a charge by attorneys that Poore's wife had told Moore if he didn't give her $100 she was going to place evidence before Solicitor General
W. A. Boykin.

Floating in River.
"Mr. Poore told me that if I mentioned that he had threatened to Mr. E. E. Andrews, I would be found floating in the river. He told me to go tell Mr. Andrews I was working for Mr. Moore again in the lottery," the witness, a man identified as R. D. (Piccolo) vis, former "pickup" man for Poore, testified.

"When I told him I wouldn't lie for Mr. Moore, he pushed a pistol in my face and cursed me. I ran, he shot and made me come back.
Then he hit me on top of my head," Davis said.

Special Prosecutor Andrews, on cross-examination, charged the witness with getting into an argument with Poore because he had told out money collected that day for "pickup" man for Poore and Poore.

Telephone Communication.
Moore, in his statement charged Poore had called him up one night and told him she had "evidence in a book that would send me to the chain gang."
"She told me that if I didn't pay her $2,000 by 10 o'clock the next morning she would go to Solicitor General Boykin with the book," Moore was given a five-year suspended sentence October 22, when he pleaded guilty with 21 other "big shot" lottery operators.
Andrews put Mrs. Poore on the stand and brought out that she had bought him a small black book showing lottery operations by Poore, after their telephone conversation about the $2,000 three weeks ago.

"I called up Mr. Moore to tell him that he ought to pay Carl for portraits that resulted from pickup men failing to turn in all the money," she said.

"He told me that he was going to get me and my husband for blackmail and send us to the chain gang. When I told him I ought he ought to pay Carl $10,000, as his share of the loss on the shortage, he said 'I won't pay you anything. You can give

Proponents of Wages Bill Claim 'Almost 200' Pledges

Northern Democrats Align for Discharge From Rules Committee in Solid Blocs; Required 218 Signatures Expected To Be Obtained Tomorrow.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—(AP)—ence behind the campaign to get Members of an unofficial steering committee in charge of the wage-hour bill asserted tonight they had "almost 200 pledges" to sign a petition forcing the measure to the house floor.

Representative Healey, Democrat, Massachusetts, chairman of the group, said they expected to have the petition signed shortly after it is placed in circulation Friday.

Signatures of 218 members would be required to take the measure from the house rules committee, which refused last week by an 8-to-6 vote to send it to the floor.

Healey said a number of state Democratic delegations were pledged "solidly" to sign the petition. Among them, he listed those from New England, Pennsylvania,
New York, Michigan and the Chicago city delegation. The Michigan Democrats announced their intention to sign the petition in a body after a conference with Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers, a CIO affiliate.

Healey said about 25 Republicans were in the 200 pledged and asserted the entire Progressive and Farm-Labor delegations had announced they would sign.

SOCIAL SECURITY METHODS PRAISED

Advisors Approve Handling of Pension Money; Tax Reduction Opposed.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—(AP)— Present methods of handling money collected for federal old-age benefits won the approval today of the Social Security Board's advisory council.

In the face of criticism that use of the money to pay current expenses of government was wrong, the council said present provisions under which the treasury sells United States securities to the pension reserve account do not "involve any misuse of these moneys or endanger" their safety.

The money obtained by the treasury is expended for general governmental purposes.

The council, it was announced, is opposed to reduction in the 2 per cent pay roll tax paid jointly by employers and employees.

The board, appointed about a year ago, numbers among its members some leading industrial and labor leaders. These include:
Edward R. Stettinius Jr., chairman of the finance committee of United States Steel Corporation; Gerard Swope, president of the General Electric Company; Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America (CIO), and John P. Frey, president of the metal trades department of the AFL. The chairman of the council is J. Douglas Brown, of Princeton University.

The council expressed its views in a communication to Senator Vandenberg, Republican, Michigan.

Woman Stunt Motorcycle Rider Seriously Injured in Spill Here

A woman motorcycle rider was seriously injured at about 11:30 o'clock last night as scores of spectators looked on when a front tire of her wheel blew out while she whirled at 60 miles an hour around a carnival motordrome at Lakewood park.

The injured performer was Dorothy Barclay, 24, of Chicago, who joined the show a year ago at Jackson, Miss. She suffered a possible fractured skull, a deep gash over the right eye, and cuts and bruises of the legs and body.
She was removed to a trailer on the lot and treated by a physician.
The accident occurred as Miss Barclay and "Speedy" Price were performing an act in which both whirl around the 'drome at high speed, one near the top and the other near the bottom. The highlight of the act comes when they dive in front of each other and thus change positions.

Miss Barclay was speeding around the top of the 'drome when the tire blew. She lost control of the wheel and crashed into the rear of Price's machine. However, he clung to the handlebars and did not tumble off. Miss Barclay's wheel plunged to the bottom. She was pinned under the wheel.

HITLER, MUSSOLINI DISCUSS COLONIAL AIMS OF GERMANY

CZECHO QUESTION
HOLDS SPOTLIGHT

Sudeten Problem Will Be Scanned With Re-

ROME, May 4.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler left Rome tonight to see a giant Italian naval display at Naples after telling Benito Mussolini of his vaulting colonial ambitions.
The visiting Reichsfuehrer departed on the royal train without his host, who plans to follow him by plane tomorrow for the demonstration of Italy's sea might.

An enormous crowd milled around the railway station for a glimpse of Hitler and the other Nazi chieftains whose visit called forth new protestations of firm friendship between the Fascist nations.

The problem of colonies, a sore point with the Germans ever since they were stripped of foreign possessions in the World War settlement, was the main subject discussed by the two dictators in their initial talks.

With Hitler the speaker most of the time and his host an interested and sympathetic listener, the leaders of Nazi Germany and Fascist Italy sandwiched their conversations in between events on the state program.

Pleads Reich's Claims.

Beyond the admission that Hitler pleaded the Reich's claims to elbow room in the world and access to raw materials, nothing leaked out concerning the range of their discussions.

They found time for two conferences, totaling two hours, in the midst of a crowded day which included ceremonial visits to the Pantheon, the Unknown Soldier's tomb and a mighty demonstration of the facility with which young Fascists can handle their war equipment.

Pact On Agenda.

Political sources said the conversations eventually would swing into other world political problems, including the absorption of Austria by Germany and the Italo-British pact.

Completely overshadowing other political matters was the effect the deliberations may have on the fate of Czechoslovakia, admittedly under the gun in central Europe.

Before Hitler left Germany all things pointed to an early test of strength in Czechoslovakia. Konrad Henlein, leader of the 3,500-000 Sudeten Germans there was known to have had the approval of Hitler and General Herman Wilhelm Goering, the Nazis' No. 2 man, in making his recent demands for political concessions.

POPE PIUS DECRIES SWASTIKA DISPLAY

VATICAN CITY, May 4.—(AP)— Pope Pius was quoted by L'Oberservatore Romano, the Vatican newspaper, as saying at Castel Gondolfo today that it was "a sad thing" that "the insignia of another cross that is not the cross of Christ" was hoisted in Rome on Holy Cross Day.

Yesterday was Holy Cross Day.
It coincided with the arrival in Rome of Adolf Hitler, in whose honor the city was blanketed with the swastika, the Nazi emblem.

The Vatican organ said the Pope beseeched a group of newlyweds to be faithful to Christian life and prayer, "since sad things are happening, very sad things, far and near."

"And among these sad things," he continued, "is this: That it is not considered exceedingly out of place and untimely to hoist in Rome on Holy Cross Day the insignia of another cross that is not the cross of Christ."

WPA Workers Told To Vote Own Choice

WASHINGTON, May 4.—(AP)—
Administrator Harry L. Hopkins told the 2,600,000 WPA workers and their bosses not to be influenced by promises of rewards or threats of reprisals from political candidates.

"No one will lose his job because of his vote in any election or his failure to contribute to any campaign funds," he said in letters to be inserted in the next pay envelope of every person enrolled by the Works Progress Administration.

"What's more I want you to let me know if anybody tries to tell you anything different."

Theaters Demand Pay Cuts For Hollywood 'Dud' Stars

"Result of Brain Fog," Actors' Spokesman Says of Ad Calling Many Big Names Box Office "Poison" and Unworthy of Such Expensive Hire.

HOLLYWOOD, May 4.—(AP)—A group of motion picture exhibitors said today that Greta Garbo, Mae West, Joan Crawford, Katharine Hepburn, Kay Francis and other movie stars had lost their drawing power at the box offices and should have their salaries slashed.

A representative of the movie actors countered with the charge that the statement "is the result of a group of brain-fogged individuals trying to pick a fuss where none either exists or belongs."

"We want the Myrna Loy, the Gary Coopers, the Sonja Henies, but we want them when we get value, not when they drive people away from the box office," said an advertisement of the Independent Theater Owners' Association of New York, appearing in a Hollywood trade paper.

"A Constructive Way."
Charles Schwartz, west coast representative of the group, said the advertisement was designed to "wake up the producers, in a constructive way, to the fallacy of paying top salaries on long-term contracts to stars who do not pay returns on the investment."

"We'd like to get pictures with the producers and have some voice in exhibiting the pictures that are unloaded on us," said Schwartz. "The producers are fully aware of the stars who attract business. The few producers who do not have theater affiliates merely have to consult their percentage contracts to determine the money makers."

Irving Carlin, vice president of an Association of Southern California Exhibitors, seconded Schwartz's comment and pointed

Dodge County Will Use Award To Construct 'Finest' Youth Camp

By HERMAN HANCOCK.
EASTMAN, Ga., April 4.—
Dodge county will devote the $3,500 it received as winner of the first award in The Atlanta Constitution's Progressive Government campaign for 1937 to erect one of the best equipped and most modern camps in Georgia and will name it in honor of Major Clark Howell, president and publisher of The Constitution.

W. D. McCranie, Dodge county commissioner, made the announcement to about 100 leading citizens at a dinner given last night in his honor. The camp will be named Camp Clark Lowell.

At the same time, McCranie called on those present "to form a Dodge county planning commission and help us study agriculture, forestry, stock raising and other pursuits and find a way to double and treble the incomes of the people of our county."

Sponsored jointly by members of the Rotary club and the Junior Chamber of Commerce, the dinner was a "surprise tribute to McCranie for his efforts in behalf of the county which won state-wide recognition as the winner of first award in The Con-

PROPOSERS SET MACHINERY GOING FOR CHURCH UNION

Seals Aiken, Atlanta Attorney, Discusses Fight To Block Junction of 3 Branches of Religion.

JUDICIAL COUNCIL
DENIES ILLEGALITY

Bishop Moore Will Head Commission To Confer With Other Divisions.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 4.— (AP)—Backed by approval of its "supreme court," the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, turned to perfecting merger with the other two branches of Methodism today, while a group of "secessionists" prepared to fight unification in civil courts.

In a memorable decision, the southern Methodist judicial council upheld legality of the general conference's vote for union and delivered a serious blow to antiunificationists' efforts to prevent junction of north and south Methodism.

At Columbus, Miss., however, Dr. J. W. Lipscomb, president of the laymen's organization for preservation of the southern Methodist church, announced his group would go to court "to save our beloved church."

Fight Is Discussed.
G. Seals Aiken, Atlanta attorney, studied aspects of the case tonight with members of the laymen's organization.

"I am not ready to say what course the action will take," Aiken said when asked if he planned to file injunction proceedings to halt merger of the churches.

"But we (the laymen) are unified in our determination to preserve the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and its principles.
You can't merge Robert E. Lee with William Tecumseh Sherman.
And there are too many doctrinal differences to merge North and South Methodists."

New Bishops Ordained.

The church's seven new bishops were ordained with the solemn Methodist ritual tonight. They were Dr. Ivan Lee Holt, St. Louis;
Dr. Clare Purcell, Gadsden, Ala.;
Dr. W. W. Peele, Greensboro, N.
C.; Dr. Charles C. Sealeman, president of Southern Methodist University, Atlanta, and Dr. W. C.
Martin, Dallas.

Bishops will be assigned to their episcopal districts at the final session before adjournment. Conference leaders said they understood all would go into new areas.

400 TAKE COURSE IN FIRE-FIGHTING

Enrollment Record Broken by Men From Southeast.

Scores of imaginary fires were put out at Station No. 7 yesterday as nearly 400 volunteer and regular firemen from all parts of the southeast began a three-day training course at the fourth annual Georgia State Fire College.

Courses in "truck operations," "engine operations," and "salvage work" will be continued at the station through tomorrow. Graduation exercises will be held at 4:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the Lee street school auditorium.

Assistant Fire Marshal Harry Phillips, director of the college, said the enrollment this year is the largest on record and that additional registrations today probably will boost the total attendance to nearly 500.

County Approves $500 for Youth Shot by Mistake

A Loganville youth wounded by county police in a case of mistaken activity when police were searching for the notorious Georgia prison fugitive, Forrest Turner, in January, 1937, was voted a grant of $500 by the Fulton county commission yesterday.

The youth, Ed Long, 20, was shot in the leg by pursuing policemen and is now facing a serious operation, Harold Sheets, assistant county attorney, reported to the commission.

The shooting occurred at Fulton county police waited in hiding at night for Turner to appear, near the DeKalb county line, where he had held up a filling station. Long sped by in a car resembling the one Turner was driving and police gave chase.

Long, thinking he was being pursued by highwaymen, sped on until overtaken. He then jumped from his car and fled on foot until police, certain he was implicated, fired.

The commission agreed to a provision that the youth shall have free treatment at Grady hospital for his injured leg.

Trained Instructor of Children To Give Words in Spellers' Final

Miss Edith Moss, Second Grade Teacher, Will Function at Constitution Contest.

A clear, distinct yet reassuring voice will pronounce the words for the youngsters of Georgia's sixth, seventh and eighth grades who compete Saturday in the final oral contest of The Constitution-National Spelling Bee.

It will be that of Miss Edith Moss, second grade teacher of the Davis Street school, who was selected as pronouncer and one of the three judges at the suggestion of school authorities because of her special radio ability with respect to children.

Miss Moss will devote her attention to the children, while the radio audience of Station WGST, which will be tuned to the contest at 2 o'clock, will be served by Fred Daiger, of the station's announcing staff.

Dr. Collins To Preside.

Responses of the children to the words given them will be followed closely by the other two judges, Superintendent Jere A. Wells, of the Fulton county schools, and Superintendent J. P. Cash, of the Canton system, regarded as outstanding authorities on spelling and spelling bees. Dr. M. D. Collins, state superintendent of schools, will preside.

The contestants will be arranged on the stage of the O'Keefe Junior High school auditorium, at Sixth street and Techwood drive, and amplifiers will convey their efforts both to the audience of school officials and interested teachers within the auditorium and to the broadcasting equipment.

Children's Interests First. Emphasis will be placed primarily on safeguarding the children from distractions. When they first assemble at 11 o'clock, for the preliminary written test, they will be given a brief, confidence-inspiring talk by Dr. Collins. Throughout the proceeding their interests will be regarded as paramount.

Those invited to the actual spelling bee include superintendents of the 122 school systems participating and individual guests of the system champions, in most cases their spelling teachers. Thus, nearly all persons within the auditorium will be members of Georgia's educational system.

Officials of The Constitution-National Spelling Bee pointed out that the fundamental purpose is to develop Georgia's champion speller among the three school grades. The winner will go to

NEW DEAL LEADERS CALL PEPPER BALLOT A CONFIDENCE VOTE

Other Politicians Fail To See Significance in Florida Ballot.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., May 4. (AP)—New Deal leaders today hailed United States Senator Claude Pepper's sweeping renomination in the Florida Democratic primary as a popular vote of confidence in President Roosevelt but other politicians, including some Democratic senators, said they could not see it that way.

Pepper, who defeated four opponents by a wide margin after campaigning on his policy of supporting the New Deal, telegraphed President Roosevelt the Florida election was "a striking vote of confidence and approval" of the administration.

Florida's senior senator, Charles O. Andrews, declared in Washington he saw no significance in the Pepper victory other than the fulfillment of a tradition "that a man who makes good at all in an unexpired term is returned for a full term." He added, "I do not believe the New Deal was a vital issue."

Unofficial reports from 1,280 of Florida's 1,336 precincts gave Pepper 233,117; Representative J. Mark Wilcox, congressman from the fourth Florida district and a frequent New Deal critic, 108,107; former Governor Dave Sholtz, 49,298; Finley Moore, of Lake City, 4,999, and T. C. Merchant, of Madison, 3,902.

DIXON FAR IN LEAD IN ALABAMA COUNT

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 4. (AP)—Returns from 2,077 of the 2,200 voting places in Alabama today gave the following figures in the race for Democratic nomination for Governor: Dixon, 141,268; Sparks, 65,658; Goode, 61,201; Riddle, 14,320; Arnold, 1,017. Dixon's total was 928 less than a majority.

NEW DEALERS BEATEN IN SOUTH DAKOTA
SIOUX FALLS, S. D., May 4. (AP)—Former Governor Tom Berry and J. Chandler Gurney, Yankton businessman, will oppose each for United States senator next November on the Democratic and Republican tickets, respectively, both having won their party's nomination in Tuesday's three-cornered primary election.

Berry, who served two terms as the state's chief executive, ran away from Congressman Fred H. Hildebrandt, of the first district, and Senator Herbert E. Hitchcock, both ardent New Dealers. Berry, while a strong supporter of Roosevelt, is considered a conservative.

Berry polled 44,168 votes in 930 of the state's 1,957 precincts; Hildebrandt 16,772 and Hitchcock 10,526. In the Republican contest, Gurney received 44,032 votes in 1,533 precincts, compared with 34,341 for Governor Leslie Jensen, 8,407 for George J. Danforth, Sioux Falls attorney, and 6,362 for Paul Bellamy, Rapid City businessman.

INDIANA RETURNS 11 REPRESENTATIVES

INDIANAPOLIS, May 4. (AP)—Returns from Indiana's off-year primary election indicated today the renomination of 11 of the state's 12 representatives in congress, all of whom are Democrats save one.

One Democrat—Representative Samuel B. Pettengill, of the third district—did not ask re-election and of the 11 congressmen who ran for another term, only three were opposed for renomination. The state's only congresswoman, Mrs. Virginia Jenckes, of Terre Haute, encountered the most formidable opposition, but mounting returns pulled her into a two-to-one lead over Paul Sturm, of Dana, leader of the farm bloc in the last legislature, in their contest for the sixth district Democratic nomination.

BANKERS WARNED OF CREDIT NEEDS
Jesse Jones Tells Group at C. of C. Meeting They Face Public Ownership.

WASHINGTON, May 4. (AP)—Bankers received a warning from Chairman Jesse H. Jones of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation today that they must be wiser and more energetic in meeting the credit needs of the country if banking is to remain in private hands.

Speaking at a meeting of the United States Chamber of Commerce, Jones said he was "afraid" that agency "or some similar government lending agency" would still be necessary when the RFC's present lending authority expires June 30, 1939. His address followed a speech by William S. Knudsen, president of General Motors, denouncing the Wagner act as "the largest drawback to good industrial relations" and accusing the "industrial union in its present form" of "depending on force in defiance of law."

Franc Pegged Below 3 Cents In Third Major Devaluation

United States, Britain Co-operated To Alleviate Grave Economic Crisis.

PARIS, May 4.—(UP)—Premier Edouard Daladier tonight announced in a nation-wide radio broadcast that the franc will be devalued immediately under agreement with the United States and Great Britain to cope with a grave financial and economic crisis crippling the nation.

It was learned officially that the franc would be pegged at between 35 and 36 to the dollar—2.857 to 2.778 cents per franc.

The financial move followed by less than 48 hours a government decree raising the French income taxes 8 per cent.

It was the third official depreciation of the franc since the World War. Pre-war parity was 19.03 cents.

Will Aid Defense.
The devaluation as well as the tax rise aids the national defense program. The government has been preparing to float a half-billion dollar defense loan, but deferred it until the franc could be stabilized. That flotation is anticipated now.

Throughout the day world markets were upset by the impending action which was heralded when the cabinet, after a meeting at the Elysee palace attended by President Albert Lebrun, announced that it had taken "an important decision concerning defense of the franc."

Values Soar.
Before the news came out dollar and pound values soared in terms of the franc on the Bourse, in London and in New York. The dollar touched 34.23 francs (2.921 cents a franc). Then official support sent it down to close at 33.93 francs (2.947 cents a franc). After the formal announcement by Premier Daladier at 8 p. m. (2 p. m. Atlanta time), the franc in New York broke to 2.85 7-8 cents bid, equal to around 35 to the dollar. On the former gold parity basis this was equivalent to 1.69 cents a franc, a record low.

Belgian belgas broke sharply with the franc in London. Other currencies were thrown out of line. When the French formally devalue it is anticipated another world currency cutting race will be promulgated, although on a smaller scale.

3 POWERS RETAIN MONETARY PACT

French Proposal Agreeable to Morgenthau.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—(P)—Secretary Morgenthau announced today the United States, Great Britain and France have agreed to continue the tripartite agreement for international monetary stabilization.

The secretary, talking to reporters in the presence of French Ambassador Rene de Saint-Quentin, said:

"During the past three days the French, British and ourselves have been in consultation about our respective currencies. After consultation, the three treasuries have agreed that we will continue under the tripartite agreement in the future just as in the past.

"We feel that what the French treasury proposes to do comes within the spirit of the tripartite agreement."

EMORY STUDENT HURT IN BEACH POOL DIVE

BRUNSWICK, Ga., May 4.—(P)—James Crosby, of Thomasville, 21-year-old Emory University student, is in a hospital with serious injuries, suffered when he dived from a 20-foot tower at a beach pool yesterday.

Crosby struck the bottom of the pool on a deep dive.

LITTLE ENTENTE DISCUSSES NAZIS

Agreement, If Ratified, Would Recognize Hungarian Right To Rearm.

SINAI, Rumania, May 4.—(P)—The Little Entente nations, faced with grave anxieties over their future relations with Germany, are working on an agreement which, if ratified, would recognize the right of Hungary to rearm.

The three nations—Rumania, Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia—were expected to complete the agreement during their two-day conference which ends tomorrow.

FRANCE'S ATTITUDE TOLD CZECHS

Councilman Couch Has a New Grandson

Councilman J. Allen Couch had a new grandson yesterday. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Couch, of 203 Thirteenth street, N. E., announced the birth of a seven-pound boy, who has been named Thomas J. Jr. Both mother and son were reported "doing nicely" at Piedmont hospital.

President Eduard Benes and Premier Milan Hodza received an official report on France's attitude toward this republic's minority problem.

Stefan Osuski, Czech minister to Paris, was said in government circles to have told Benes and Hodza that the attitudes of both France and Great Britain had materially improved from the Czech viewpoint since the Anglo-French talks in London.

SCHOOLBOUND BOY KILLED BY TRUCK

West Virginian Held in Death of Chas. H. Ledford, 8.

Charles Homer Ledford, 8, was killed yesterday morning when,

according to police reports, he ran into Stewart avenue, near Moreland way, Hapeville, from behind a parked car, and was hit by a truck.

The body was badly crushed, and was taken to the establishment of Paul Donehoo. The boy was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard W. Ledford, of Grand avenue, Hapeville.

Lloyd Fox, of Huntington, W. Va., alleged driver of the truck, was arrested by Hapeville police. The boy was on his way to school when the accident occurred.

Get Wise to Constipation!

When you're constipated, it's a great temptation to be satisfied with quick relief. But physics may become a habit. And they don't keep constipation from returning. It's so much better to get at the cause of the trouble.

If you eat what most people do, chances are the only thing the matter is you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean how much you eat. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement. What to do? Eat a little Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day and drink plenty of water. This crunchy toasted cereal is not only rich in "bulk"—it also contains the natural intestinal tonic, vitamin B₁. All-Bran is made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.

ABOUT the best way to ruin a swell engine is to run shy on oil. To keep this from happening, all of us Shell dealers have a little proposition for you.

Hop in your car and drive to any one of our stations. If we don't look at your oil without your asking, then you put the finger on us. We'll bring your oil level right up to the full mark free.

We'll use our Golden Shell Oil, too, the kind that has been refined especially for today's stop-and-go driving. Maybe you never knew that stop and go calls for a certain kind of oil. Well, it does—and here's why: You average ten cold starts a day. If your oil is slow-flowing, one start can cause as much wear as 50 miles of steady running.

Golden Shell changes this. It's fast-flowing. The second you start, it coats each engine part with a tough oil film that doesn't break down into harmful sludge and carbon... even under the extreme heat of your steady running.

Remember—there's no finer oil than Golden Shell at any price.

FOOD FOR CHILDREN MEMORIAL TO COOK

Friends of Willie Daniels To Omit Flowers.

Friends of the late Willie Daniels, a colored girl from the country who rose to fame and fortune by her culinary genius have been asked to contribute to the Willie Daniels' memorial fund for children, instead of sending flowers to the funeral, it was announced yesterday.

Proceeds from the fund will be used to feed and clothe needy children in the colored schools of the city, a charity in which Willie had been active for years. A committee of five has been named to administer the fund. Contributions should be sent to M. Agnes Jones, chairman, 572 Tatnall street, S. W.

F.D.R. Gets Fish, Loses an Anchor, Heads for Home

CHARLESTON, S. C., May 4. (AP)—President Roosevelt had the unusual experience in the Lesser Antilles today of hooking the largest fish—a 20-pound pompano—and of hooking the anchor of his launch on a coral reef, necessitating its abandonment.

The double "hooking" occurred during a three-hour fishing expedition off Sombor Island, a remote little British possession east of the Virgin group, following which the cruiser Philadelphia left for a slow run back toward this port.

A message from Secretary McIntyre received at the navy yard here tonight said the party was due off San Juan, Puerto Rico, about 6 a. m. tomorrow.

"The cruiser will not anchor there," the radiogram said, "but will stand by long enough to receive official pouch from Washington and send off mail to Washington."

GEORGIA GLEE CLUB TO SING TUESDAY

Minna Hecker Will Appear as Guest Soloist.

The University of Georgia glee club, this season making its 37th tour, will give the annual Atlanta concert at 8:30 o'clock Tuesday night, May 10, in the auditorium of the Atlanta Woman's Club. Hugh Hodgson is the director of the club. Minna Hecker, Atlanta soprano, will be the guest soloist.

Soloists in the glee club are Carl Pittman, David Barrow and Luther Bridges. Robert Harrison, violinist, also will be featured.

The first half of the program will be devoted to a group of classical numbers by the glee club, folk songs, solos and operatic numbers. The second part will be "On the Air With U. G. A.," featuring the Georgia Collegians' orchestra, closing with a grand finale with Miss Hecker, chorus, and orchestra, in "The Rogue Song" and "Italian Street Song."

Tickets may be reserved by communicating with Virlyn Moore Jr., First National Bank building, or Mrs. Waldo Oettinger, 2243 East Lake road, N. E., telephone Dearborn 3203.

LAYMEN LAUNCH MERGER ATTACK

Seals Aiken, Atlanta Attorney, Discusses Fight To Block Union.

swiftly toward a close, Senior Bishop John M. Moore, Dallas, said machinery for completing union would begin work immediately. Bishop Moore, who retires from active church work with the conference adjournment, will continue as head of a southern Methodist commission which will confer on union with representatives of the other two divisions of the denomination, Methodist Episcopal (North) and Methodist Protestant churches.

Delegates' Conference. A conference of delegates from the three churches will meet within 12 months to launch the unified church.

The judicial council's decision today virtually ended the breach between north and south branches of Methodism caused in 1844 by negro slavery. The Methodist Protestants broke away from the large body of the church in 1828 because of disagreement over the Episcopal form of church government.

In its opinion, the council set aside contentions of Bishop Collins Denny, of Richmond, and his son, Collins Denny Jr., that approval of "each" annual conference was necessary for unification.

Denny, spearheading the anti-unification fight, asserted the plan of union as adopted by the general conference involved a change in the Methodist articles of religion, and therefore failure of the North Mississippi conference to sanction union invalidated the whole procedure.

The council rejected this contention with the declaration the articles of religion were not, in fact, changed and that even if they were, unanimous approval of annual conferences was not necessary.

Unanimous Opinion. "The annual conference is not a constitutional unit," Judge Martin E. Lawson, Liberty, Mo., said in delivering the unanimous opinion. "The church was not formed by union of the annual conferences. They were hewn out of the territory and the ministry of the church."

The decision reviewed Methodism's church law since 1784 in substantiating its ruling, dwelling especially on action of the general conferences of 1828 and 1832, which, the council said, "eliminated the annual conference as a constitutional unit and substituted therefore the members of the . . . annual conferences . . ."

"Insertion in the Discipline," said the opinion, "of the phrase, 'which may be altered upon the joint recommendation of all the annual conferences by a majority of 2-3 of the general conference succeeding was clearly illegal. If it was meant as a part of the constitution, it would have had to go the rounds of the annual conferences and have come back to the general conference of 1910. It was never submitted to that body."

Action of the 1906 conference also was illegal, the council pointed out, because the action was legislative and not judicial. The general conference, the opinion said, "does not have the authority to pass upon the constitutionality of its own acts."

The decision quoted passage from the articles of religion of the three churches to be merged, pointing out identities, to show union would not force a change in the southern articles.

Merger Foes' Statement.

The laymen's organization for Preservation of the Southern Methodist Church tonight issued the following statement:

"Notwithstanding the fact that Bishops Candler, Denny and Cannon, the three ablest minds in the college of bishops for 50 years, stated this general conference could not legally adopt the plan of unification, it has been done."

"The judicial council, after a lapse of 89 hours from the closing argument, today signed their names to a decision which took nearly 50 minutes to be read, declaring the vote for unification was legal and thus closing the issue so far as this conference is concerned."

"For many weeks the laymen's organization has put delegates to the conference on notice and has pledged the 30,000 loyal southern Methodists who are members or have voted against the plan in mass meetings and in official church meetings, that in case the general conference and its judicial council overrode the will of nearly 3,000,000 laymen by adopting the plan, we would seek justice in the civil courts."

"Today's action of the judicial council has forced that course. We have not authorized any statement as to when action will be filed. We are represented by 40 leading southern lawyers who will issue a statement as soon as it is thought desirable to do so."

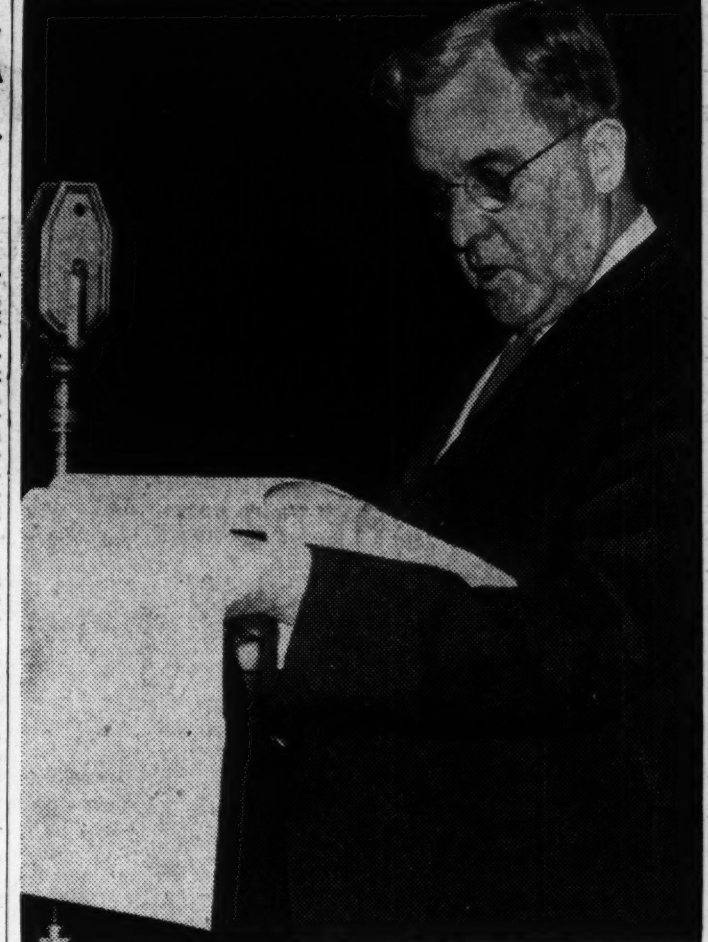

"We urged loyal southern Methodists not to leave their church nor to resign from their official positions until the civil courts have spoken."

"The executive committee today authorized G. Seals Aiken, one of our Atlanta attorneys, to apply immediately for a charter for the organization. It is expected that the 30,000 loyal southern Methodists who have voted against unification, as well as many additional thousands, will continue their interest in saving southern Methodism."

"The 232 preachers and 214 laymen who voted for unification were elected delegates largely because of their expressed determination to vote, and do not in the least represent the nearly 3,000,000 laymen in the southern church."

(Signed)
"LAYMEN'S ORGANIZATION FOR PRESERVATION OF THE SOUTHERN METHODIST CHURCH."

Judicial Council Verdict Read Methodists

The verdict of the judicial council of the Methodist Church, South, upholding unification, is read to the general conference in Birmingham by Dr. Martin E. Lawson, of Mexico, Mo., chairman of the council. The action ended the fight within the church of the anti-unificationists, who now plan a civil legal attack on the merger.

PROOF OF REDFERN DEATH IS REVEALED

Expedition Victim's Widow Receives Letter Citing Waldeck Discoveries.

NEW YORK, May 4.—(AP)—

Gertrude E. Fox, widow of a tim of the ill-starred Waldeck expedition into the South American jungles in search of Paul Redfern, long-lost American aviator, today received a letter giving details of Redfern's fate.

The letter was sent from Georgetown, British Guiana, by Theodore J. Waldeck, leader of the expedition, and was postmarked April 27, the day Waldeck and wife emerged tired and haggard and suffering from exposure in the jungle.

Mrs. Fox's husband, Dr. Erick J. Fox, wealthy New York demagogue, died of fever while the party was marooned on Devil's Hole island, far up the Cuy river.

"I have found the place where Redfern's plane crashed and all the proof that he is dead," Waldeck's letter said.

"We have in our possession a gunnysack—a small bag of beans used in carrying their hunting and fishing 'beans' (lure charms), insuring them of a good catch for the day. Upon examining it, we found it was made from the cuff of a man's pants and machine-stitched."

"Second, we have an arrowhead the point of which is made from the blade of a knife."

The letter added Waldeck's belief that both the knife-blade and a trouser-cuff belonged to Redfern since the natives in that region never gain possession of such products of outer-world civilization.

Redfern disappeared in August 1927, on a non-stop solo flight from Brunswick, Ga., to Brazil.

Amazing? No, routine! Day After Day THOMAS GROWS HAIR

YEARS ago the re-growth of hair on bald heads was unusual and amazing. Today, modern science in the form of Thomas' reliable treatment has made re-growing hair a routine matter—a daily occurrence. Each day The Thomas' are ending dandruff, stopping abnormal hair-fall, and re-growing hair for more than 1600 persons.

With Thomas' precise, modern method of retaining or regaining hair available there is no reason why you should become bald or remain bald. If you do, you do so by choice. Baldness is not thrust upon you. It warns you of its approach—you have dandruff; your scalp itches; your hair falls abnormally. You douse your scalp with cure-all concoctions and try hit-or-miss treatments—and almost before you know it your scalp is ready to join a nudist colony.

Choose hair—not baldness. More than a quarter-million other men have found that hair can be retained or regained by the reliable, proved Thomas method. Thomas can help you to get rid of your dandruff; stop falling hair; and re-grow hair on the thin and bald spots.

Consult a Thomas expert today. He will examine your scalp without charge or obligation, and tell you frankly just what can be done in your particular case. He knows the symptoms of the 14 local causes of baldness and knows exactly how to overcome them. Remember—scalp examination is free.

The three photographs at the right show how Thomas treatment completely re-grew hair on bald spots for Mr. Wm. Eckhardt.

We're Home-bodies, too, NEIGHBOR

Sitting home at night, you've heard the neighborly whistle of our locomotives.

Next time you hear that sound, we hope it will be a reminder that we are home-folks, too . . . sharing in community responsibilities . . . making a definite contribution to the comfort and security you enjoy when you step inside your own front door.

From wherever they are produced, we help bring your home-building materials to you . . . lumber, stone, cement, brick, steel. Chances are, we brought many of the things you use inside your home as well . . . furniture, fixtures, heating equipment, even your foodstuffs. Last year we hauled around six million tons of material largely used in construction and home furnishing. . . Thus we have been a helpful partner in developing the communities we serve . . . carrying nearly fifty million tons of freight last year at an average cost of less than a cent per ton for each mile hauled. That's why we're home-folks, too . . . why we hope to deserve your continued friendship and patronage.

LITTLE SPUDS GOING TO MARKET

It seems very simple for a woman to drop in at her grocer's and say "I'll have a peck of potatoes." Instead of a peck, she gets three and a half million tons delivered to all the corner grocers in a year, traveling an average distance of 74½ miles. This service is rendered at a low rate. No other form of transportation could handle the tonnage at close to the price—if it could handle it at all.

CHINESE OUTFLANK

Either Killed or Wounded in Few Days.SHANGHAI, May 5.—(Thursday)—(AP)—Chinese today reported continued "rapid progress" in their counter-offensive on the center of the 30-mile Shantung front where the fate of 100,000 Japanese troops daily becomes more uncertain.In addition to the 12-mile gain previously reported northeast of Taierchwang, the Chinese asserted they had repulsed a Japanese attack at Nikow, 10 miles to the northwest of that city.They also said a flying column had moved around the Japanese left flank and cut communications between Tancheng and their base at Lini.Chinese sources estimated 34,000 Japanese soldiers had been killed or wounded in recent days around Tancheng and Pihien, where the Japanese had made their most serious threat against the Lunghai railway.Confronted with the Chinese claims, a Japanese army spokesman parried with the explanation that "we have no information from the Shantung sector."To foreign military observers, it now a puzzling question whether the Japanese attacking power is spent or whether the invaders are merely recuperating and organizing for a final thrust.Chinese admitted a number of their ranking officers—including three brigadier generals, seven regimental commanders and several battalion commanders—had been killed in the drive northeast of Taierchwang.Nevertheless, the Japanese struck back with a ferocious air raid on Tuchow, Chinese base and junction of the Lunghai and Tientsin-Nikow railways. Chinese reported 70 killed and wounded and 200 houses destroyed.SENATE DISTRICT

PROBLEMS OF CITY PERPLEX 'MAYOR' ELECTED BY YOUTH

Yarn and Hartsfield Discuss Question of Co-Education Here.

Atlanta's two mayors got together yesterday and decided it was nice to swap places for a while.

"Mayor" David Yarn, Tech High senior selected as Atlanta's young one-day mayor by his fellow students, accepted an invitation to sit in with Mayor Hartsfield in preparation for his task today.

"Mayor" Yarn was perplexed about municipal problems.

Mayor Hartsfield talked blithely of the days when he was a kid at the old Crew Street school.

Got Kicked Around.

"You know, they used to kick me around a lot in those days,"

Constitution Staff Photo—Wilson.

Mayor Hartsfield was temporarily dethroned yesterday as David Yarn, Tech High school senior, of 300 Josephine street, took over the chief executive's chair and gavel and explained how he proposes to run things today when he will reign as mayor. His honor listens intently as the junior version propounds his policies on city government. Yarn insists that Atlanta needs more parks and playgrounds. When the camera clicked he was discussing the question of co-education in the school system.

Mayor Hartsfield said, "I bet if they knew I would be mayor some day, it sure would have made things easier for me."

"Mayor" Yarn said:

"What do you think about coeducation in the high schools?"

Mayor Hartsfield: "What do you think?"

"Mayor" Yarn: "It has its advantages and it has its disadvantages."

Mayor Hartsfield: "No wonder you got elected, 'Mayor' Yarn.
You're a pretty good politician already, judging from that remark."

"Mayor" Yarn: "I notice you did not answer my question either."

Mayor Hartsfield: "Let's get down to brass tacks, 'Mayor' Yarn.
You brought up the subject. What do you think about it?"

"Mayor" Yarn: "Well, I think it would be a good thing. The fellows would dress neater and act better.
And it would help the girls, too, because they'd study harder to try to get ahead of the boys. Then the boys that live on the south side wouldn't have to cross town to get to school, and the girls on the north side wouldn't have to go so far, either."

Mayor Hartsfield: "What about those disadvantages? Let's get both sides of the question. You know you're in politics now."

"Mayor" Yarn: "Well, there'd be a lot of petty love affairs."

Mayor Hartsfield: "Naturally."

"Mayor" Yarn: "You could leave Tech High for boys, because of the shops, and make Boys' High and Girls' High co-educational. That would work out all right, wouldn't it?"

Question Left Open.

But like most public officers,
they left the question open.

David spent nearly an hour with Mayor Hartsfield, sitting in his swivel chair while the mayor sat across the desk and talked about the old days when he was a boy.

David's selection as mayor was in preparation for Citizenship Day, a part of the youth week celebration. He will take part in a radio program this afternoon at 2 o'clock over station WAGA. Mayor Hartsfield, George B. Hamilton, state treasurer; Mrs. Fred E. Scamling, vice president of the League of Women Voters, and R. B. Brantley, of the Lions Club, chairman of the committee in charge of the day's events, will share the microphone with him.

REGISTRATION URGED ON YOUTH OF CITY

All young people recently passing their 21st birthday will be urged to register as voters today as Atlanta observes Citizenship Day as a feature of Youth Week.

Citizenship Day is planned to show the community activities which are preparing boys and girls to take part in the business of running the affairs of government.

Convenient booths will be placed at Davison-Paxon's, Rich's and Muse's, where deputy tax-collectors will be on duty to make the registrations.

The Lions Club, the League of Women Voters and the Woman's Chamber of Commerce are sponsoring the events of the day.

R. B. Brantley, of the Lions Club, chairman of the committee in charge, said all employers of young people eligible to vote but not yet registered had been urged to allow them time enough to register during the day.

Other members of the Lions Club committee include Frank Brandon, Kempton Haynes, George Hamilton, V. C. Todd and Paul W. Key.

The Youth Week program will be brought to a close tomorrow with the observance of Recognition Day.

EDUCATION CENTER PROPOSED BY COOK

Central Campus for All High Schools Studied by Sutton.

Establishment of a municipal education center designed to relieve "public dissatisfaction with the physical set-up and general lay-out of Atlanta's high school system" was recommended yesterday by Ed S. Cook, president of the Atlanta Board of Education.

The plan was submitted to Dr.
Willis A. Sutton, city school superintendent, for study by the school administration.

Calling for the utilization of the present Fulton High school and Commercial High school buildings, the plan provides for the building in the center of the city of a high school education center, complete with athletic fields and a spacious campus.

Although the program would probably involve the expenditure of approximately $2,500,000, funds can be diverted from allocations to scattered projects throughout the city, making the additional cost less than $1,000,000, Cook pointed out.

Intended to improve the school system and at the same time eliminate slum areas, the proposal would necessitate purchase by the city of blocks bounded on the north by Trinity avenue, on the west by Central avenue, on the south by Woodward avenue, and on the east by Washington street.
All present buildings, with the possible exception of Trinity church, would be torn down.

Cook asked that the merits of this plan be compared with those of Dr. Thomas H. Reed, who recommended that Henry Grady High school and Girls' High school be converted into co-educational high schools to serve their respective sections.

Under the new plan, Girls' High, Tech High, Boys' High and Commercial High would be combined in the new center and the buildings now housing Boys' High and Tech High would be designated a junior high school.

The board of education president proposed that eventually Girls' High school might be converted into a junior college to provide some college education for those students who could not go to an established college or university.

"We must look into the future," he said, "and make our plans to accommodate our future needs.
Makeshift plans might suffice for the present, but those who follow us would find themselves in our present position," Cook explained.

"In my opinion, this plan would be much less expensive and would give us a better system than if we continue the policy of building schools in various sections of the city," he added.

ATLANTA, GA., MAY 5, 1938.

COTTON IN AUSTRALIA

In 1937 Australia produced, for the use of her own textile mills, 8,519 bales of cotton. In that year the six spinning mills which are all operating in that commonwealth, consumed all this cotton as well as 16,500 bales imported from India and the United States.

This year, it is estimated, the Australian cotton crop will be more than doubled, amounting to approximately 18,000 bales. Consumption is also expected to increase, but not in the same ratio. It is predicted that the total requirements of the Australian mills for 1938 will be 25,000 bales, making importation of only 7,000 bales necessary.

Thus another nation is rapidly becoming independent of the United States as a source of cotton supply. The foreign market for the principal crop of our southern fields is fast disappearing, as other sections of the globe learn how to produce the fleecy staple for themselves.

When the day, not far distant, arrives when America shall have entirely lost her export cotton market, the blame will have to be placed, almost altogether, upon faulty economic practices by the United States government.

The cotton grower has always labored under a terrific handicap because of the high tariff policy of this nation. Not only has he had to buy in tariff protected markets when he sought essential supplies, but he has had to sell his own product in world markets without such artificial price stimulant.

Added to this has been the fact that foreign would-be buyers of American cotton have found it more and more difficult to sell their own products to this country, over the frequently heightened tariff wall. They have thus found it almost impossible to create credits in America to pay for the cotton they desired.

Aggravating these conditions has been the agricultural policy of a nation which has paid its farmers not to grow cotton and has added to the price of cotton through government subsidy and government loans or purchase.

Each artificial stimulus to price of this character has automatically made it more profitable for producers of foreign grown cotton.

The spread of cotton culture in Australia is but an example, on small scale, of experiences in other parts of the world. Brazil, India, China and other countries have found it advantageous to develop their own production to replace the American cotton they previously bought. These countries are fast taking away from America a world market which, for many years, gave her a favorable balance of trade with all other nations combined.

The days of American cotton exports are numbered. It will not be long before all the world will forget that it used to depend, almost entirely, upon this country for its supplies of the fibrous staple.

IMPROVED TRAFFIC CONDITIONS

The Evanston traffic plan, in full operation for the first time in Atlanta during the month of April, has been most encouraging in its results. There was only one fatal traffic accident within the city limits during the 30-day period.

The system was inaugurated, in its entirety, after a school had been conducted to familiarize the members of the police department with the details of its operation. A special instructor from the International Association of Police Chiefs conducted the classes. The man responsible for its administration is Captain Jack Malcom.

A satisfactory application of the plan depends on the completeness of police records and facilities for quick action when necessary. This embraces a drivers' file, a record of every traffic offender, use of motor-mounted police for a speedy check-up of violations, day and night operators to investigate hit-run accidents, and a traffic department at headquarters which never closes.

It is also encouraging to note that the improvement was not limited entirely to a reduction in fatalities. There was also a sharp decline in recorded traffic accidents. Although there have been more fatal accidents thus far in 1938 than 1937, a continuation of the April record would make 1938 the most satisfactory period in recent years. And there is no reason why it shouldn't be.

One thing, however, must be borne in mind. No police department, no plan, no matter how efficient, can attain the desired maximum results without the co-operation of all the people.

ple. It is the duty of every citizen to refrain from consciously violating traffic regulations. It is the duty of every citizen to report violations. If this were done it would soon become second nature to observe the law in its minutest detail. And chronic violators, willful as well as unintentional, would soon be convinced that flouting of traffic regulations is no longer to be tolerated.

GOVERNMENT FINANCING

The public debt of the United States and Great Britain is about the same—approximately $40,000,000,000. The present British budget calls for five and one-quarter billion, also about the same in amount as provided in America's revenue bill for the fiscal year 1938-39. Yet the British budget is balanced. America's budget is not. Britain pays as she goes and her debt remains fixed. American spending far exceeds income and the debt continues to rise.

Britain, the older and more experienced nation, long ago discovered it was better financing to meet an increasing budget out of current income. The method has a two-fold advantage. Solvency and a balanced budget. It is admitted that borrowing is the simpler method. But the problem, in the long run, especially in case of unforeseen contingencies, would be far more difficult of solution.

The assumption of the new budget by Britain indicates the people do not quail when faced with an increased burden of taxation. They regard the pay-as-you-go method as the most logical. They recognize an absolute necessity in maintaining the nation's credit. And they also avoid the far heavier burden of the future. The present generation pays for its own protection. If future generations were required to pay the present burden, it is argued, how could they pay their own as well? Such a course might well bring disaster upon the nation.

The question of spending additional billions in America is now being debated. Right or wrong, those who advocate the spending stoutly maintain there'll be no necessity for additional taxes! The money, of necessity, must then be borrowed. Without doubt this is simply placing the burden of the present generation on the shoulders of the future. Can future generations carry this burden, in addition to their own, without jeopardizing the physical and financial status of the nation? Are American statesmen less far-sighted about this than the British?

America goes steadily into debt rather than face a disagreeable situation. The nation, like the extravagant individual, is buying on credit, hoping somehow the money to pay will be available when the bill falls due. The interest alone will, in another year, approximate one-fifth of the nation's annual expenditures.

The system of taxation in Britain, as in America, is designed to place the burden most heavily upon those better able to pay. But in Britain practically every one is required to contribute something. All are thus made conscious of the fact they are doing their part in supporting their government. When taxes are increased complaints come in from rich and poor alike. This serves as a check against wasteful spending.

In America, the people have been lulled into the belief by political spell-binders, that the rich man not only should, but actually does pay the bills of extravagant government. So there is no check against wasteful spending. The load grows heavier and heavier.

The burden now necessarily carried by the British may serve as an example of sacrifice to a less burdened people, as well as a more satisfactory method of financing a nation's needs.

LOCAL HELP ESSENTIAL

Henry T. McIntosh, of Albany, chairman of the State Planning Board, has called a conference to be held in Athens next Tuesday. To that conference every county in the state is asked to send a representative.

The purpose of the gathering will be to discuss ways to arouse local interest, in each county and each urban community of Georgia, in the problem of conservation of the state's natural resources. Mr. McIntosh points out that by one costly malpractice alone, forest fires, Georgia suffers an annual loss between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000.

It is indisputably true, as stated by Mr. McIntosh, that no effort for general good can be successful unless it is backed by the enthusiastic support of people on the spot. This fact entails the creation of local units, county or city-county groups, to actively direct that portion of the general program which falls within the area of their own communities.

Neither the federal nor the state government can achieve proper results in any constructive effort if not supported by local people. Experience has shown this to be fundamentally true. It is true in the field for which Tuesday's conference is called, that of conservation, and it is true in all other fields of public activity.

When the people as a whole adopt the habit of looking to the state capital, or to the federal government, to assume full responsibility for every public advancement, then progress stops and retrogression inevitably begins.

Georgia must conserve, in all parts of the state, not only her forests, but her soil, her minerals, her wild life and her human resources. To do this it is essential that every one contribute through co-operation in that part of the job that lies nearest the front doorstep.

It is to be hoped every county in Georgia will send representation to Tuesday's meeting in Athens. Then, if these delegates return to instill enthusiasm into their own people, half the battle for conservation will have been won.

HITLER MODIFIES HIS TERROR-TECHNIQUE
(From the Charlotte Observer.)

Hitler is about his same old nefarious business again, using only a different technique. He is stirring up the animals in Czechoslovakia.

Unlike his procedure in the case of Austria when, in order to annex his own nationals, he annexed the whole country, he has managed to coax or to threaten the Germans in Czechoslovakia to initiate the disturbance.

Apparently on their own motion and option, they are now demanding autonomy; which, of course, is to say, that they want to become nationalized as Germans instead of as Czechs.

The situation is the same in that country as it would be for the German population of American to make a demand that they be Germanized while yet remaining in America, even though it required the annexation to Germany of every body else.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

DECIDE ON PARTY WASHINGTON, May 4.—The moment when the La Follette decided to lead an aggressive third party movement was in late November; the place was Bob La Follette's pleasant home in Washington. And the decision was made at one of the family councils of war which have been a La Follette tradition ever since Old Bob charted his political course at the dinner table, with his wife and his small children to help.

Governor Phil had been on a Caribbean cruise. On his way back he stopped, as he always does when he is near Washington, to confer with Senator Bob. When they are apart, the two men are in daily touch by telephone, but they like best to put their heads together in one room.

The discussion was long; many factors entered into it. The President's waning leadership, the tie-up of his legislative program in the special session, the successful opposition of the Democratic conservatives to the New Deal—all these were touched upon. Touched upon also was the new depression, which was recognized as real by both Senator Bob and Governor Phil.

Length, the two men made up their minds. They would make no announcement that could be construed as a necessary preparation, and spy out the lay of the land. Immediately thereafter, Governor Phil began a series of small, informal meetings, at which he carefully tested sentiment for a real third party among Progressive leaders. Meanwhile, both men and their inner circle of friends and advisers were busy with such chores as designing their curious cross and circle party emblem and looking up the state laws affecting their venture. This spring they were ready. The announcement was made.

BOB AND PHIL Politically, the La Follettes are a well-balanced pair. Phil is all public presence and platform manner. He has his father's dash and fire, the faculty of arousing a crowd, the ability to hold attention. There is something stage-managed about his entrances and exits, as there always is in the goings and comings of a born leader of crowds.

Bob stems from his mother, who was always Old Bob's closest and best adviser. He can orate. Rather stiffly, if he has to, but he prefers to stick to an intelligent exposition of the facts. He is shrewd, rather secretive, immensely practical, with a stern public manner which belies his fondness for private good-fellowship. His mind is harder, probably better than Phil's. Phil would scarcely bother, for example, to become an expert on taxation, as Bob has. Above all, Bob La Follette has a passion for getting things done.

The combined political judgment and tough appraisal eye. And, in this case, in spite of the scorn of a good many politicians and commentators, there are deeply significant features of the situation which have passed unnoticed.

CHARIOT FOR LIBERALS It's remarkably significant, for example, that their decisions to make their Progressive party a national movement was to come at the start of the untidy, named Roosevelt depression. It's equally significant that their final announcement was delayed until a long winter of governmental stagnation had passed, until the depression had been allowed to deepen disastrously while the President and his administration just muddled along. It's significant, too, that the announcement was made in the very month when the Gallup poll showed the President had lost one-third of his 10 per cent majority in four short weeks.

Once the Progressive party was established in 1934, Bob and Phil La Follette have expected the moment to come when they could fight on a front passing the frontiers of Wisconsin. In 1934, they chose to start their own party rather than join the democracy because they believed that the liberal element could not permanently dominate the democracy.

But the timing of their final announcement was determined by two things. In the first place, by last fall, the split personality of the Democratic party, and the difficulty confronting a liberal leader within the Democratic party had been pretty adequately proved. And, in the second, the new depression threatened to do to the President what the old one did to Hoover.

Liberalism has ridden in the Roosevelt chariot for so long that it is associated with Roosevelt in the popular mind. With a depression damaging the President, liberalism must find a chariot of its own. And the La Follettes believe that they have provided that chariot.

TIME WILL TELL For the future of the Progressive party, time must show that. The return of prosperity would probably end the movement, but the signs are that prosperity will not return very soon.

This fall, the La Follettes plan to take their party to three or four states. In Iowa, they have high hopes of getting somewhere, and, in scattered congressional districts elsewhere, they can at least expect to make trouble. But they believe that time is on their side. They think that each passing month is sure to demonstrate the incapacity of the old parties to cope with a disintegrating economic system. And when that demonstration is complete, they expect the voters to turn to Progressivism. They may be wrong, but their calculations are at least immensely important.

Worries

About McGill.

Mr. Ralph McGill, the colossus of sport erudition, now in Europe, has written some things in his stories for The Constitution which have given me great pleasure.

For instance, it was reassuring to discover he travels third class on the British railroads. It is well known, over there, that no one travels first-class except fools and rich Americans. There is no second class, it is plain to see.

It is confirmation of my previous belief that Mr. McGill is neither weak in intellect nor plutocratic in finances.

There have been several other revelations, however, which have pained me. It is disappointing to discover that a man you have all along held in the highest esteem is, after all, possessed of faults and frailties little suspected.

For instance: Mr. McGill, in a recent column of his, describes in detail an institution of the English carnival world known as a cocoanut shy. He speaks, even, approvingly of the thing.

Now, Mr. McGill, if you had absorbed the proper English spirit—that is, the better type English spirit—you would know that a cocoanut shy is an extremely common affair. I presume, Mr. McGill, it is the better type English spirit which you are interested in.

Say, at least, the ultra respectable middle-class? I thought so.

Well, stay away from such devices as cocoanut shies, with their appeal to the coarser instincts of the great unwashed, please.

Another Thing,

Mister McGill.

Another thing, Mr. McGill. Just what type are these pubs you seem to be frequenting? Are they thoroughly high-class temples of refreshment. Are they fitting places wherein a distinguished traveling journalist may pour a small libation to Bacchus?

From one or two connotations in your description, I rather fear you have been seen in some of the commoner resorts. The places where 'Arry and 'Arriet congregate of a Saturday night.

You may be deceived by the customary appearance of quiet sobriety of the place. But believe me, my friend, they are not places where really respectable shopkeepers or professional men would be found.

Do your favorite places have sawdust on the floor? They do! Change your habits, Mr. McGill. If you don't the afternoon tea set at the Hanjaras emporium is apt to look at you askance when you return. Sort of down the nose, as it were.

Fearful

Suspensions.

I am beginning to fear, Mr. McGill, you will perpetrate something as ghastly if you don't mind your own business.

You don't, I sincerely hope, wear a soft felt hat when you visit The City of a forenoon? That would be frightful, old topper. Get you a bowler—black, of course—at once.

You haven't, I trust, asked for coffee at the afternoon tea hour. But no, I feel pretty sure you haven't. Not that, is it, if you had sampled the usual English coffee beforehand.

Do you know the correct trick of balancing a tea cup and a crumpet in one hand, and a cigar in the other, as to the manner born, down Piccadilly of an evening?

I shall expect a full and detailed report—with demonstrations of your social acquisitions—first thing after your return.

Until then, pray be careful of your deportment. Stay away from cocoanut shies and exercise judgment in your choice of pubs.

Twenty-Five

Years Ago Today.

From The Constitution of Monday, May 5, 1913:
"Two hundred panic-stricken guests were brought pell-mell out of the Aragon hotel shortly before 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when it was discovered that fire, originating on the roof, had spread over practically all of the fifth and sixth floors."

And Fifty

Years Ago.

From The Constitution of Saturday, May 5, 1888:
"There is in circulation a petition to open a road from the gates of Piedmont park to Easton, and on to Rock Spring, connecting with the Plaster Bridge road. The proposed route would open up the Peachtree valley, and make a much better road than the one which is now in use by Walker's mill. It is proposed to lay off the property at Easton and build a town there, at the junction of the Air Line and Belt railroad. Some of Atlanta's moneyed men will push the enterprise to a successful issue."

Japan's Awakening.

In 1854 Japan was impressed by the guns of the ships of Commodore Matthew C. Perry. United States navy, into signing the "open door" treaty that threw open its ports to the world's ships and trade.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Our Civil Liberties I wish that all of us who are interested in the preservation of civil liberties could get together on one thing, namely, that all men's civil liberties are equally sacred, that the civil liberties of William Randolph Hearst, for an extreme example, are no more safely to be flouted than those of a Communist orator, or an organizer for the CIO, and I mean all civil liberties, not only the right to speak freely.

Lately, in Tampa, Fla., there was that case of a WPA worker who was fired from his job within a few hours after a grand jury of which he was foreman brought indictments against some local politicians. The report of the grand jury said: "We find that the defendant has been able to stretch his tentacles with some degree of success into our state and national politics." He was quickly reinstated, but that was done only to stifle the squawk. The man had been thoroughly and officially fired for reasons which I deduced, from the circumstances, and which seem to be thoroughly rotten, the worse because an agency of the federal government was involved.

Then the state head of the WPA was called before the succeeding grand jury, which was trying to find out whether this had been a case of intimidation, and he refused to discuss the matter on the authority of a letter from Harry Hopkins. On that precedent the WPA holds the right to punish any jurymen employed by the WPA who bring in an indictment or a verdict against any favored politician and need not reinstate him. This particular victim may now be fired again, this time permanently, for the moral effect on others who may feel a temptation to get fresh in the performance of their duty as citizens.

Frank Hague Vs. I think this case is as bad as that of Norman Thomas, who was arrested and deported from Jersey City by Frank Hague's policemen for trying to make a speech. If there is any degree of badness in such things it is a little worse, because, after all, Frank Hague is local, and, anyway, he has fallen on his back. If there are any who haven't, but the WPA has been momentarily confirmed in its power to coerce jurors.

If a private employer did that and then refused to testify before the succeeding grand jury he would be thrown into jail for contempt, and it would serve him right.

I think we also have too free use of the income tax returns as a means of harassing individuals. Now, the very fact that a man makes enough money to require a return is likely to be held against him, but it shouldn't be. He may be as good a citizen as the man without a dollar. And I see no reason to break out a man's tax return and blab it all over the country because he is suspected of short-changing the treasury.

The President recently authorized the Senate lobby committee to go into the returns of witnesses called in the inquiry into the lobby against the reorganization bill, and I think this is coercion.

Business Affairs Men don't like to have their business affairs otherwise just consider the dogged bashfulness of the President's son. Not the honesty of his return but the sources of his income were called into question a year ago by a Republican representative from Jimmy's home state—Massachusetts. The house committee in charge of that case refused to let an expert take Jimmy's return apart, and I indorse that refusal, but think other men should enjoy the same type of abuse which I would like to see recognized as such along with the offenses of Frank Hague is the coercion and intimidation of men who refuse to go on strike. Constant sneering has almost worn away the individual's right to go to his job without having his ears knocked off with a wagon spoke or half-brick, and his right to work at his job if he can get there alive. Nevertheless, that right still exists, although it is openly mocked and flouted, particularly by some men who claim to be extremely sensitive about civil liberties.

In the excitement and partisanship of the last few years many of us have come to feel that civil liberties and constitutional rights exist only for those who agree with us. We are always hearing that it is of the utmost importance to respect the liberties and rights of radicals, because they impose the greatest strain on our tolerance. I agree to that, but with the observation that it is equally important to treat the most extreme reactionary the same way.

It will go on decreasing as industry comes, and the successful organizing of labor into unions will go on increasing.

The important thing is that the problems of this region are tough ones, but become more and more obvious that the answers are coming about no matter how bitterly we oppose each other. The wage differential problem, for example, seems likely to settle itself not by federal fiat but by the accumulative coming of industry, by the resulting increase of labor demand over supply. The records of the Southern States Industrial Council show that the wage differential has been decreasing with the increase in southern industrial investment and operation. It will go on decreasing as industry comes, and the successful organizing of labor into unions will go on increasing.

What the south needs now is more men of position and influence who will do battle for civil liberties in the name of no cause but that of our country and Constitution. More men who will fight as hard for the liberties of those they oppose as of those with whom they side. Men like Charles Evans Hughes. Men like good old Alf Landon.

One no one is entitled to talk of saving the Constitution who won't join Governor Landon in denouncing sins against the civil liberties which are its very soul. No newspaper is qualified to do battle for freedom of the press which won't lift its voice for equally precious freedoms promised in the same bill. Unless we newspaper people make ourselves guardians of all civil liberties, as our positions of public trust require us to do, we cannot hope to defend our particular civil liberty against the threats that gather against it.

McGill Says Businessmen Like Hitler Rule

Most of Them Are Doing Better Than in Dark Days After War, Writer Declares at Vienna; Wages Are Low.

By RALPH MCGILL.
ARTICLE NO. EIGHT.

VIENNA, Austria.—(By Mail).—Sitting in a coffee house in Vienna two nights after the "election," an Austrian shoved a set of figures across the table to me.

"Have a look," he said.

"Vienna's population is estimated at 1,850,000. Allowed to vote were those of Nordic descent and who were more than 20 years old. Obviously, one-third of the Nordics must be under 20. Therefore, subtract 600,000; that leaves 1,250,000.

"Now, at least 190,000 Jews live in Vienna. They were not eligible. Nor were the non-Nordics eligible. Therefore, we must subtract about 200,000 from the list. That leaves, at a liberal estimate, not more than 1,050,000 eligible to vote.

"Yet, the election returns certify that 1,226,000 persons were eligible to vote and that 1,219,000 voted Ja." It is quite impossible—to anyone but a Nazis election chief.

The whole thing reminded me of our own late Huey Long and his less able imitators in other states. Hitler, of course, would have won a handsome majority. There was no need to make the election unfair, by putting pressure on the relatively few who wanted to vote against him, and by padding the lists.

AUSTRIA HEADED FOR FINANCIAL BOOM

Meanwhile, Austria is headed for a financial boom. Already plans are made for new streets, new buildings, new public works. It was this chance at a job which turned most of the support to Hitler. "Bread and Work" was, next to the slogan, "One People, One Reich, One Leader," the most often seen.

The propaganda which poured out for 10 days or more prior to the election was so skillful that few could withstand it. The German Reich is strong on figures and statistics. Few can be checked.

Yet, the German knows that things are better for him now than they were. He eats poor food. He works long hours. His standard of living is low. It will not be greatly improved by the addition of the new "Ostmark." Yet he believes, not so much in the Reich itself, as in Hitler himself. And Hitler never relaxes the pressure or propaganda.

GERMAN WAGES LOW—EXAMPLE:

German wages are low. I talked with a German woman in Berlin who earned about 117 marks per month. The registered mark is worth about 27 cents. It has, in Germany, if bought inside the Reich, a value of about 38 cents. She was a high wage earner, occupying an important office position. Her wage was unusually high for a woman.

Here were her deductions:

Sick benefit—3.37 marks per month.

Unemployment tax—5.85 marks per month.

Old age pension—4.00 marks per month.

Income tax—13.52 marks per month.

Winter help tax—1.35 marks per month.

Union dues—2.80 marks per month.

The total of these dues which are deducted and called "voluntary dues," is 34.39 marks per month.

As to income tax, the man who makes 100 marks a month, or about $40, pays no tax. If a married man has four children he may earn 200 marks per month without paying an income tax. He pays, of course, his other taxes.

A single man earning 8,000 marks pays, in addition to other taxes, a 10 per cent income tax. A married man earning 8,000 marks pays five per cent. On incomes of more than 50,000 marks the tax on the income is 25 per cent and above 500,000 marks it runs to 33 1-3 per cent.

MOST BUSINESSMEN LIKE HITLER'S RULE

It is possible to find some businessmen who are not doing well who do not like the government. Most of them, doing better than in the dark days after the war, like it.

The propaganda never ceases. It is spectacular, calculated to catch the imagination. Hitler wanted to dramatize a new highway, which will connect with the great German system of highways and go on into Austria.

The great "dedication" was at Salzburg. Hitler himself dug a spadeful of earth. A great number of trees had been cut almost through. When Hitler dug in his spadeful, the hundreds and hundreds of trees fell at the same instant and opened up a vista through which could be seen, in the distance, the German highway with which the new one would connect.

That is a fair sample of Nazi dramatics. Nothing is overlooked. Meanwhile, all civil liberties are suppressed. The newspapers cease to be newspapers. They become sheets which record little news of the world. They all hammer, hammer away at the Nazi doctrines.

On Sunday night, at midnight, I sat talking with some people. One of them was a Nazi official. He was glowing with the success of the election, in a good humor. A FRANK ANSWER BY NAZI OFFICIAL

"There is at least one thing I do not understand," I said. "Why do you not have free newspapers if your government is so popular and so secure? Why do you not let the people have news?"

He was quite frank.

"We don't care about them knowing but the one thing," he said. "Nothing else matters. The state is the one thing. We don't teach anything else, we don't print anything else."

Hence the windows of book shops are filled with Nazi books, most of them written by Nazi officials. Hitler and Goering are the greatest successes with Rosenberg, Goebbels and Hess lesser "best sellers."

There is, of course, order in Vienna. But the terror goes on. I have seen it. Let no one say that the stories of terror are propaganda. They are true stories. I have seen too many children and wives whose fathers were killed or who were, by punishment, driven to suicide. It is murder either way.

Meanwhile, all those who study should consider these facts: The Nazi power is built on youth. I keep repeating that. Youth that saw no future, no hope of profession or job, turned to the strong man.

It is built on real ability. Only a dreamer must expect a revolution. Black bread, low wages, a standard of living our relief families would protest are better than what they obtained previously.

The farmer was neglected. He was paying a tax on every cow, chicken and pig. He was not allowed to make any profit. He was starved.

VIENNA WAS LIVING IN BEAUTIFUL DECADENCE

A man told me: "Vienna was living in beautiful decadence. Those who had money used it for themselves. The poor officials, in a 'kept' state which had been dropped by its supporters, the Allies, were helpless. It was hopeless."

No one debates what Hitler says. No committee reports on it. No one in Germany or Austria wires to their congressmen. No one there prints an opposition editorial or whispers an opposition word. There is one man.

(Tomorrow Mr. McGill will write of his trip back to London).

STRAWBERRY JAM

Quick, easy, and successful Every time
with your modern Gas range

YOU may "get by" with most other foods by using "about" the right heat. You will get something, even though it won't be right. But jellies and jams must have exactly the right cooking speed, and they can't be made without it.

That's the reason those who use anything but Gas will tell you that they are so difficult to cook and results are always uncertain. Those who use Gas never tell you that, because with Gas you can without the slightest trouble get just exactly the degree of heat you need instantly.

Here's one of many recipes for strawberry jam. It doesn't take long and isn't any trouble... and how proud you'll be when you store away a gleaming row of jars, all filled with your own homemade variety!

The modern gas range is so easy to use... so saving of time and effort... that it will increase your leisure hours almost unbelievably.

Our SPRING RANGE SALE offers trade-in-allowances up to $15 for your old stove. Don't wait. Change it today for a modern Gas range that will serve you efficiently... with less use of fuel... throughout its long life.

Showers To Ease
City's Heat Wave
As Crops Thrive

Thundershowers will bring relief to Atlanta today from the season's first "heat wave," the United States weather bureau predicted last night.

Although the maximum is expected to be about 85 degrees, which would equal yesterday's high mark, officials said the weather would be "generally cooler" during the next 36 hours. The minimum yesterday was 69 and a low reading of 65 is forecast for today.

As a result of recent high temperatures, a rapid advance of nearly all Georgia crops was reported yesterday by George W. Minding, Atlanta weather man, despite lack of rain in south and mid-eastern counties.

The earliest peach crop in 20 years was predicted while the watermelon outlook was described as "excellent" except near Unadilla and Tifton where cool, dry weather has retarded growth.

Poor stands of cotton were reported in some eastern and southern counties because of excessive dryness, while corn was said to have been hindered in some areas by dry ground.

Tobacco, however, was described as growing rapidly under favorable weather conditions. Truck crops, sweet potatoes and oats were said to be in need of rain although some relief has been afforded by local showers.

'PERFECT CRIME'
IS STILL A PUZZLEAged Mother Confesses on Eve of Freedom in West Coast Mystery.

WALLA WALLA, Wash., May 4.—(P)—A few words murmured behind prison walls brought back into the spotlight tonight an asserted crime so nearly "perfect" that it still puzzled authorities claiming a confession.

State Penitentiary Warden J. M. McCauley said an aged prisoner, Mrs. Mary Ellen Smith, had confessed she and her life-term son, Earl de Castro Mayer, killed James Eugene Bassett, 36, former naval officer, 10 years ago.

Police of two states used virtually all the scientific tricks available a decade ago in an unsuccessful attempt to extract a confession from the tight-lipped woman and her son.

Mrs. Smith and Mayer were caught in Oakland with Bassett's automobile, some of his personal property and a weird-looking "poison pistol"—designed to kill with lethal gas.

There was no corpus delicti—no proof that Bassett was killed. Mother and son held their tongues, and the best authorities could do was to convict them of automobile theft.

Mrs. Smith, now 73, was given an indeterminate sentence. Mayer was sent up for life as a habitual criminal.

Broken and in tears, McCauley said, the aged Mrs. Smith confessed on the eve of her release from prison "to make herself right with her Maker."

"She said she stood by," McCauley added, "while Mayer killed Bassett by hitting him on the head. The motive was robbery."

Thus the way was opened to hunt for Bassett's grave. But nearly ten years has elapsed and there were no specific directions. Without a corpus delicti the authorities still would fall short of a complete solution, even with Mrs. Smith's help.

Dietrich's contract in full for one more picture. Dietrich, too, is poison at the box office. Kay Francis is still receiving many thousands a week from Warners on an old contract. Yet so far as her draw, she is now making 'B' pictures."

Yesterday, Miss Hepburn and R. K. O. failed to agree on a new contract, and she is free to negotiate elsewhere.

M. C. Levee, speaking for the Artists' Managers' Guild, representing the movie actors named in the advertisement, issued this prepared statement:

"Although apparently, on the face of it, the advertisement appearing in the Hollywood Reporter is definitely of libelous character, nevertheless, managers representing the personalities involved cannot bring suit for libel because of contractual relationships between their clients and the studios that employ them."

"Contracts are being made for the purpose of determining whether or not any legal action will be taken but based upon the wave of resentment from other exhibitor groups throughout the nation and upon opinions expressed in responsible circles, it is pretty well concluded now that the ad in question is the result of a group of brain-fagged individuals trying to pick a fuss where none either exists or belongs."

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of fluid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel up and up.

Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 25c. Stubbornly refuse anything else.

East of Teruel.

HENDAYE, France, at the Spanish Frontier, May 4.—(P)—Government troops retreated slowly the Mora de Rubielos sector of Teruel today as the Insurgents increased the pressure of their offensive in eastern Spain.

Intermittent rains hampered military operations on both sides but Generalissimo Franco's forces methodically attacked after a storm.

The fighting centered in the south of the Pobo mountains, 20 miles due east of Teruel, where the Insurgents are hammering defenses fronting the town of Mora de Rubielos.

Further steps toward the initiation of a broad program of civic improvement to cost approximately $50,000,000 were taken yesterday by a special city-county committee as Alderman Roy Callaway, chairman of the group, appointed nine subcommittees to study various projects presented to the body.

Eight separate committees were appointed to consider different types of projects. These include arterial highways, schools, other public buildings, hospitalization and health, prison camps and welfare buildings, parks, playgrounds, historical markers and Stone Mountain Memorial library extensions, and airway extensions.

Gay B. Shepperson, state administrator of the Works Progress Administration, and Eric D. Fulk, state director of the National Emergency Council, explained how the projects could be financed through the WPA and Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Both pledged their cooperation.

George F. Longino, a member of the Fulton County Commission, elected vice chairman of the special committee.

Members also voted to invite Commissioner C. A. Matthews and citizens from DeKalb County to join the committee.

The general committee will meet at 12:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the room of the Rich's tea room. Traffic improvements will be discussed at the meeting, and other types of improvements will be taken up.

Association Founded Here
Now Numbers More Than 200,000.

Atlanta machinists will observe the golden anniversary of the founding of the International Association of Machinists at a banquet at 7 o'clock tonight in the Henry Grady hotel.

Throughout the nation, Canada and the United States territories similar meetings will be held by the more than 1,000 locals of the organization, which was founded in Atlanta.

Officers Are Guests.
Three international officers will be guests at the banquet tonight. They are A. O. Wharton, international president; Emmett C. Davidson, general secretary; and Fred Hewitt, editor of the Machinists' Monthly Journal, all of Washington, District of Columbia.

Mayor Hartsfield has granted a half holiday this afternoon to all members of the Atlanta Local No. 1 and No. 1076 in observance of the golden anniversary. Private employers have been asked to do likewise.

One Founder Survives.
The organization was founded by 19 machinists on May 5, 1888. Of this original group only one is still alive, Henry F. Garrett, an employee of the city of Atlanta.

The organization now numbers more than 200,000 members.

Emmett L. Quinn, president of the Atlanta lodge of the association for many years, will preside. R. B. Bogart and Harry Magbee are co-chairmen of the anniversary celebration committee.

Future Responsibilities Are Cited By University Honors Day Speaker

President McCain, of Agnes Scott, Urges Co-operation for Health, Law Observance, Good Government, Educational Improvement, and Fair Play for Worker.

ATHENS, Ga., May 4.—President J. R. McCain, of Agnes Scott College, addressing University of Georgia honor students and visitors at the annual Honors Day exercises in the university chapel this morning, urged the co-operation of scholars in forwarding the course of "health, law observance, good government, improvement in education, and fair play for workers."

"Our achievements in the years to come," President McCain declared, "will measure the real worth of the education we are receiving. It is not alone the mastery of subject matter and the demonstration of a high intelligence quotient that will mean most as we put ourselves into life, but quite as much our attitudes, our team work, our fortitude."

Today's Trust.
"In the Bible," he continued, "it is suggested that one thoroughly trained and consecrated person would chase a thousand evils, while two would put 10,000 to flight." It is but a parable to show how useful it is that scholars unite and co-operate in the efforts that will be needed and that will be most fruitful.

Honors Awarded.
Highest scholastic honors at the exercises went to the 21 seniors whose averages placed them in the upper 3 per cent of the graduating class. The students were:

that book to anybody you want to, and I'll go ahead and make my five years. But when I come out it won't be so healthy for you," Mrs. Moore testified.

She said she was so frightened that she only knew one thing to do, so she carried the book showing the shortages and lottery entries to Andrews at his home the night of April 21.

story of how he and Moore had re-entered the lottery racket on a partnership basis and had developed a business that during March and April had a daily "take" of $600.

Poore Claims He Quit.

Poore said he had quit the racket "around April 8," and did not "know where the lottery main offices are located now." He said the day's tickets had been checked each day at Moore's farm at Conley, in Clayton county—supposedly by Mrs. Moore.

"Dick asked me to take over his lottery business last fall after his suspended sentence," said Poore. "I was to take the falls and he was to stay in the clear. He got a third, I got a third and Mrs. Moore got a third," Poore said.

In his unsworn statement, Moore said:

"I haven't been operating a lottery. My brother-in-law knew all about that. I have a daughter 14 years old and in school and I don't think it would be proper for me to hazard myself to a five-year sentence.

"The whole thing is that Mrs. Poore called me and told me if I didn't give her some money she would send me to the chain gang. Instead of doing the proper thing and getting her before a lawyer, I got mad and she told me I didn't pay her $2,000 by 10 o'clock the next morning she would go to Mr. Boykin with the evidence.

Davis, the negro who testified he was threatened by Poore, said Poore came to him one night in December and told him he was "going to be boss now and that Mr. Moore was doing it to have anything to do with it." Poore also told him to "round up the boys," Davis said.

Picking Up Tickets.

Davis said he picked up lottery tickets from "bug writers" on Peachtree street, turned them over to Poore at Fifteenth street. The tickets were taken to headquarters, checked for the winning numbers—based on the three middle digits of the New York bond market close.

Davis said Poore came by a cafe on Morris avenue about four weeks ago and said he was getting out of the lottery racket because "we were all going to be indicted."

"He said he was going to have Mr. Moore sent to the chain gang and told me I was going to tell Mr. Andrews Mr. Moore had been back in the lottery business," he said.

Meanwhile, testimony had been introduced from C. C. Rawlins, agent for the Baltimore Sales Book Company, in which he admitted he furnished the "bug" number to "about four different telephone numbers in Atlanta."

W. G. Densmore, city policeman formerly assigned to the solicitor general's lottery raiding squad, testified he had seen Moore and his wife riding on West Peachtree, Lafayette drive and in the Tenth street section and that on several occasions, packages "about the size of lottery tickets were tossed in their car by passing automobiles or persons on foot."

Show Legitimate Business.

After the state rested, Defense Attorneys Paul Lindsey and W. R. Bentley put up several pinball machine salesmen and restaurant operators to show that Moore has been operating a legitimate business, the Capital Vending Machine Company, on Third street, since last fall.

GEORGIA SPENDING IS 4 MILLION IN RED*Arnold Reports Taxes Up
$6,772,439 Over 10-Month Period in 1937.

The state of Georgia spent $4,179,829 above its income during the past 10 months, although tax collections exceeded those of the same period a year ago by $6,772,439, a summary by Zach Arnold, state auditor, showed yesterday.

Total receipts were $35,427,823 and expenditures were $39,607,652. For the same 10 months, July through April, in the previous fiscal year, collections totaled $28,655,384 and expenditures $26,923,298.

Arnold said the increase in expenditures for the 10-month period totaled $12,700,000.

Of the increased spending, $4,400,000 went for highways; $5,000,000 for common schools; $1,900,000 to the Public Welfare Department for old age pensions and increased aid to state institutions and $1,400,000 was used for the expanded health program, establishment of Public Safety Department, unemployment compensation division, and employment division of the Department of Labor.

Sharp increases in collections were shown for income taxes, property, professional and poll taxes, beer and wine taxes.

Income tax collections jumped to $4,225,000 from $2,580,826. Property, professional and poll taxes increased to $5,105,089 from $3,797,728. Beer and wine taxes rose from $493,047 to $1,028,532.

Fuel oil and kerosene tax collections for the current 10 months totaled $16,552,246 compared to $16,236,654 for the previous period. Liquor taxes, which were included in the budget for the first time, showed $511,881 for the 10 months. Automobile license taxes amounted to $1,490,386 compared to $1,330,018.

Comparative figures for various departmental expenditures included the following:

State Highway Department, including newly created rural post roads division, $11,784,648, compared to $7,341,158 for the previous 10 months; common schools $12,223,160, compared to $7,300,002; public welfare administration appropriation $286,799, compared to $37,404; health department $376,000 for the current year, against $139,687 a year ago; agriculture department $330,737, against $177,369; natural resources $290,915, compared to $160,547; revenue department $486,548, against $210,462; prison department $334,665, compared to $138,652; legislative expense $265,194, compared to $206,737.

Under the heading "other departments" the summary listed an expenditure of $816,499 for 20 agencies, compared to $664,216 for 16 agencies in the previous year. Arnold's statement showed a balance in trust for various state agencies on April 30 totaling $2,661,875, compared to a balance of $5,368,995 in trust on the same date in the previous period.

the pending wage-hour bill. The committee was sent by the American Federation of Hosiery Workers.

Representative Ramspeck, Democrat, Georgia, said he informed the group he could not sign a petition.

Ramspeck said he favored a wage-hour measure that would provide a fact-finding process to determine wage scales, explaining this would inevitably produce differentials, not necessarily between the north and south but between all sections, where living and other costs varied.

Off to Washington! For Parade of Schoolboy Patrol

Atlanta's schoolboy patrolmen gave themselves a rousing send-off last night as they left Terminal station for a three-day trip to Washington. The group is believed to be the largest unit from any city and will occupy a place of honor in the seventh annual schoolboy patrolmen's parade Saturday.

ANXIOUS PARENTS ADMONISH SONS*Rousing Farewell Makes Wellkin Ring as Patrol Train Leaves Terminal.

By YOLANDE GWIN.

Remember the first time you left home and mother and heard those last-minute instructions before the train pulled out?

Things like, "Don't hang out the window!" "Don't forget to drink your milk, and don't eat too much candy!" "Don't forget your tooth brush!"

Last night more than 300 boys left the Terminal station on a special train for Washington, the group composing the Atlanta School Boy Patrolmen who will take part in the seventh annual A. A. School Boy parade in Washington.

Before the train pulled out mothers and fathers jammed cars to give last-minute instructions for their sons' great adventure in the national capital.

Imagine 300 boys, all talking and yelling at once; all moving, all wanting to sit next to the window; everybody asking everybody else questions. Officer H. Clay and Captain Jack Malcolm of the police force, left with the boys.

Anxious mothers and fathers, hugging and kissing their sons good bye and giving a pat on the back with last-minute instructions. Here are a few:

Mrs. Howard McCall to Howard Jr.: "Mind the police and don't fall over the side of the ship at Annapolis!"

Mrs. Varney S. Ward to Stuart: "Remember to think for yourself!"

Mrs. Norman Cooledge to Norman Jr.: "Don't dare hang out the window!"

Mrs. G. Rainey Williams gave a double order to twin sons, Russell and Rainey: "Bring back as good report as you do in school!"

Mrs. Frank Carter to Frank Jr.: "Eat plenty of apples and hurry back to Mama!"

Mrs. G. A. Nicholson Jr., to William Chapin: "Please go to sleep—if you get a chance!"

Mrs. Ralph Brooks to Ralph Jr.: "Remember to put on your sweater!"

Mrs. Lawrence Cook to Lawrence Jr.: "Remember your promise!"

Mrs. W. C. Harris to Billy: "Wire me the minute you get there!"

Mrs. A. Y. Williamson to Billy: "Don't lose your ticket!"

Mrs. Scott Allen to Dix: "Ask the policemen anything you want to know."

Mrs. J. E. Ball to Eugene: "Write down everything you see!"

Mrs. Harry Darby to Harry Jr.: "Don't forget Mama!"

Mrs. George H. Kasper to George Jr.: "Don't forget to say your prayers!"

Mrs. Lucian Harris Jr. to Robin: "Stay with the crowd."

Mrs. John A. Bostwick to John: "Don't get sick!"

Jack Olden, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Olden, is all set for "his glorious adventure," Bob Covey, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Covey, wants to see everything; Billy Black was still yelling for his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Black, when the train pulled out; John Hogan, Billy Schroeder and Otis Berkshire were interested in only one thing—"a battleship"—and Cohen Duvall pasted a sticker on the car window. It read:

gan, a leading advocate of lower pay roll taxes.

Vandenberg had declared taxes could be cut if the "needless" program of building up a huge reserve account be scrapped. He suggested creation of a contingent fund only large enough to pay benefits as they come due.

The council said it recognized there were other ways of financing the old-age insurance system, but added this subject was "so complex" that it was not ready to express final judgment "as to the method of financing which would be most desirable from a social and economic standpoint."

More than 300 Atlanta schoolboy patrolmen boarded a special train last night at the Terminal station, bound for Norfolk, B. more and Washington.

Led by Captain Jack Malcolm of the city traffic squad, and retired Manager Charles Bishop of the Atlanta Motor Club, sponsor of the trip, the group will part in the seventh annual schoolboy patrolmen's parade to be in Washington Saturday under auspices of the American Automobile Association.

Believed to be the largest unit from any city, the Atlanta boys will occupy a place of honor in the third division of the parade.

Arriving in Norfolk this morning, the patrolmen will inspect navy yards, ship-building yards and other points of interest in Virginia port, and board a tonight for the overnight bay to Baltimore. From Baltimore they will arrive in Washington tomorrow night and return to Atlanta Sunday.

Membership in the patrolmen is limited to boys in the high scholastic brackets of the grades in the elementary school and the three grades in the high schools. The boys are trained by members of the patrol squad for traffic duty street intersections near schools.

Interesting Good Luck Emblems To Be Worn by Dorothy Dean

By Sally Forth.

The blonde and lovely bride who will walk down the aisle at St. Philip's cathedral at 5 o'clock on Saturday afternoon will carry out the good luck poem that brides-elect for generations have striven to exemplify.

When Dorothy Dean and William Mason plight their troth amidst one of soft lights, flowers, and the glow of candlelight, Dorothy carries out the age-old traditions by wearing her exquisite wedding dress as the something new. The priceless Venetian lace cap which adorns her golden curls will be the one her mother wore when, Miss Nellie Kier Stewart, she became Mrs. H. Ewing Dean.

The "something borrowed" which Dorothy will wear will be the stitful strand of pearls belonging to the grandmother of Emmy Lin, who is her first bridesmaid, and the "something blue" is a pale blue chiffon handkerchief which was given the bride-elect by Mrs. Fred C. Mammone, mother of the groom-elect. Dorothy and William were introduced to each other at a tea-dance that was given by Julia Block, so Julia wishes to continue to be a part of good luck for the young couple, has given Dorothy a leaf of clover to wear in her hair, when the wedding takes place on Saturday.

The groom-elect is the namesake of his paternal grandfather, late William Mason, of Faraway, N. Y., so when his paternal grandmother died, she bequeathed to her will that the stitful flat silver which has adorned her table should some day beautify the table of Billy and were the late Dr. J. P. Leake and Lella Martha Jackson Leake, beloved Marietta. Mrs. Leake was an esteemed member of the Presbyterian church and the family has been identified with the progress of the church since its founding. The paternal grandparents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. David Brydie Mitchell IV, of Columbus.

The christening robe to be used is 75 years old and was worn by the baby's grandfather, and was the handiwork of Mrs. D. B. Mitchell III. Made short-waisted, with square neckline and ruffled sleeves, the dress is an exquisite example of the dainty fingerwork of that period. The tiny tucks in the skirt are hand-made, and it is finished with a ruffle attached with herringbone stitch to the skirt. Another feature of the christening is that the little girl will wear a chain and locket, the gift of her maternal grandmother, the late Mrs. Leake, the treasured gift being among the articles in the baby's layette.

MARTHA FRANCES SMITH, one of the few student writers who "covered" Mrs. Roosevelt during her visit here at the Rural-Urban conference, had quite a thrill during a recent trip to Washington, where she attended the meetings of the Children of the American Revolution. A feature of her trip was a visit to historic Williamsburg, and Martha Frances, who adores to visit antique shops, stopped in "The Sign of the Golden Ball" to see the pewter display. As she wandered in the store, she brushed shoulders with a tall matron whom she suddenly realized was none other than Mrs. Roosevelt herself!

Sally can easily imagine the thrill which Martha Frances felt as the First Lady smiled in her gracious manner to the little North Avenue Presbyterian school student, Mrs. Roosevelt was with a party of friends and Martha Frances admits that she was so overcome over the surprise meeting that the distinguished shopper had slipped out of the shop and entered her car and whizzed away in no time.

Martha Frances says she lost interest in her own shopping after that, because she spent the remainder of her visit in "The Sign of the Golden Ball" looking for a vase similar to the one bought by Mrs. Roosevelt. The young Atlanta made the trip to Washington with Mrs. Leonard Wallace and Polly Baldwin, of Madison.

T. E. L. Bible Class.

T. E. L. Bible Class of the Baptist Tabernacle met at the church recently, the meeting being followed by a tacky party honoring the business women of the class. Mrs. Roy Jones presided and Mrs. J. L. Teague, social chairman, had charge of the program.

Mrs. Fannie Rogers gave readings, and Mrs. Julius Smith gave several piano selections, after which Mrs. R. C. Redd was judged to have the best costume. Mrs. T. A. Thompson and her group served punch.

Diet and Exercise Both Important in Your Reducing Program

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Tuesday.—Yesterday afternoon I greeted quite a large group of Girl Scouts and a group from the George School, before attending the annual garden party given by our rector, Dr. Wilkinson, and his wife. They have a lovely garden and it is always a pleasure to have a glimpse of it at this season.

I returned to a swim in the pool, supper in the rose garden and three short movies sent down especially for me to see. One movie was on the war in Spain, one on the war in China and one on conditions in our Cumberland mountains, which might almost be termed a war on our own economic conditions.

I could hardly bear to look at some of the pictures. I found myself closing my eyes in utter disgust and horror that human beings can do such things to each other.

Not having had a completely restful night on the sleeper, I was quite ready for bed, but I was haunted by the pictures and had to do some work before I could get into the mood for oblivion.

A ride at 7 this morning, an hour when it is hard to believe that anywhere in the world there can be cruelty and ugliness and filth.

There is a certain incongruity between all the work we do for Child Health Week and our unconcern about many of the conditions which lead up to poor health in children.

The American Heart Foundation sponsored an international broadcast on Monday to bring to the attention of people the story of those little cripples who do not show their physical deformity, but who, nevertheless, are physically handicapped by heart disease. Very often poor food, poor environment and bad heredity are factors in this illness. I saw many of the little sufferers in a Boston hospital last Friday morning. Perhaps some of you will remember the story written by Paul De Kruif several years ago, in which he told very dramatically the story of one poor little victim. This is a disease which takes a tremendous toll among children and should have more attention from the public than it has so far received.

All morning I looked forward to 11 o'clock as the hour at which I had decided to telephone my daughter, for May 3 is her birthday. I had not heard her voice for some time and, though I often complain that the telephone can be a nuisance, I certainly was grateful this morning to be able to express my good wishes and to hear her voice, even though we are so far apart.

At 11:30 Mrs. Helm, Mrs. Scheider and I drove over to Annapolis, Md., and saw two of the old houses which are on exhibition during garden week. The Hammond-Harwood house, which has beautiful fireplaces and cornices, and the Chase house, which has one of the most charming staircases I have ever seen, were on view. We luncheoned with Mrs. Wilson Brown, whose husband is now superintendent of the Naval Academy. In a few minutes I shall be out in the garden receiving a young group—the children of congressional parents.

Hollywood Today

By SHEILAH GRAHAM

—News From the Studios—

HOLLYWOOD, May 4. — Ever since Al Capone made headlines with his recent mental illness in Alcatraz prison, all of Hollywood's major and minor studios have been brooding on how to turn it to capital—and a picture. Paramount is first with its plan to shoot—in the camera sense of the word—"King of Alcatraz," with Al Capone as the villain, and a character based on Capone. The story will open in Alcatraz, showing the effect of prison life on the mind of the master gangster, with an attempted escape thrown in for good measure. I think Paramount is a natural for Capone. Don't you?

Frederic March is wanted for the role opposite Bette Davis in "The Sisters." But whether he accepts the offer depends on whether he will defer his next stage attempt until the fall. It would be a good combination. Bette and Freddie, and Warners are using high financial persuasion to get March. Meanwhile, Bette is making tests in the studio after four weeks on the blacklist that deprived her of a minimum $10,000 in salary. Jules Garfield, from the New York stage, is second male lead in "The Sisters." Production is scheduled to start May 20.

Kay Francis is entering the last lap of her picture career with "Lady Doctor." And then there is only one more on her list before she retires, probably still "The Fair Cheat," in which Kay appears as a lady gambler. Humphrey Bogart and Patric Knowles are with her in "Lady Doctor." Bogart as a comedy gangster with a Napoleonic complex who kidnaps novelists Knowles for falling in love with Miss Francis.

The major roles in "The Great Waltz" will be portrayed entirely by foreigners, with the exception of Henry Hull, who appears as a natty young Franz Josef. Star ferns include Luise Rainer, Fernand Gravel and the Viennese opera star, Miliza Korjus, whose first picture this is during her long wait in Hollywood.

Robert Taylor will swap punches with William Gargan in "Give and Take." Gargan made his first hit in a similar character part in "Animal Kingdom," as a down-on-his-luck fighter who became a butler for leading man Leslie Howard. . . . El Brendel, who hasn't done too well in pictures lately, gets a small role in "Valley of the Giants." . . . Donald Mc-

YOUR FIGURE, MADAME!

By IDA JEAN KAIN

DIET OFF POUNDS; EXERCISE FOR SLEEK LINES.

Which is more important in your reducing program, diet or exercise? That is a question the scales and tape measure must answer for you, but probably both and certainly exercise.

If your weight is away above normal and you have a bumpy dumpty silhouette, you need diet and exercise. With excess weight but good proportions, you need diet more than exercise, but you still need exercise. If your weight is all right but your proportions all wrong, you can get along without diet . . . just concentrate on a program of corrective exercise.

It would be physically impossible for you to reduce any considerable amount of excess weight by exercise. Whenever weight is more than 10 per cent above normal, diet is a necessary part of the program. If your proportions are fairly good, you want to be sure to keep them that way. A program of all diet and no exercise has a tendency to take the fat off the upper portion of the figure rather than the midsection where you want it off. Moreover, you want your flesh to be firm, not loose and flabby. You may not need very much exercise, but you need it every day.

In the case of the person who is overweight just in spots with the scales around normal, exercise is the thing. More than likely there is too much weight on the hips and the abdominal girdle, or your hips may be all right, and your waist too large. Diet will not correct your measurements and neither will just any type of exercise, but there are specific exercises that will trim your waist and even build up your chest measurement.

The reducer who has my sympathy is the one with a great deal of overweight and too much of it concentrated on one or two measurements. Her program really calls for will power. Not only must she stay with a fairly rigid diet, but the specific exercises are hard work because of her weight. If this is your type, endurance counts. Your diet must be followed for months perhaps for a year or longer. It might be well for you to begin your exercise program with a few of the exercises in the leaflet "Stretch the Fat From Waistline, Ribs and Wristbone." Take it easy and don't try to rush into exercises that require flexibility. Those will come later. The stretching exercises will limber the waist, and "Rolling Exercises" will help you to make progress with the hips.

Regardless of your weight, it takes exercise to dispose of bumps and bulges. And the slim, supple figure can only be achieved through a carefully selected program of exercises to build up or reduce measurements.

HEALTH TALKS

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

GIVE THE BABY A BREAK.
Here is a typical query which many young fathers should take to heart:

What do you think about having an eight months' old baby sit listening to radio program evenings after his daddy comes home? It amuses daddy, so he thinks it is all right. School children seem to be very nervous these days, hands always moving and legs shuffling and shaking. Don't you think babies should be in bed early and kept as quiet as possible? (Mrs. S. L.)

Anyway it is encouraging to know that a young father likes to come home to be with his baby in the evening. Too many young fathers nowadays prefer to get out as many nights as possible, to enjoy their booze, gambling and other indulgences too painful to mention, while the unhappy young wife and mother sticks right on the endless job as the dutiful slave of the mother. What is needed in this too free country is a whipping post for husbands and fathers who are mentally and morally too childish to comprehend a man's responsibility. And a kind of medical court or judicial commission to order steel spurs on the lachrymose husbands who have infected their wives with gonorrhea—the usual cause of mutilating operations a year or so after the birth of the only child; the usual cause of one-child sterility. Husbands who have married without a premarital medical examination and a certificate of freedom from communicable disease, deserve fitting punishment for this crime.

Yes, Mrs. S. L. is right, a baby under a year of age should be abed every day without fail by 5 p. m. and should not be disturbed by unnecessary noise or excitement after that time of night. It is not necessary or even advisable to attempt to hush-hush ordinary household noises or activities—a normal baby should not be disturbed by ordinary noises. But even if daddy must forego the joy of an hour with the baby at that time, he surely will not mind it when he knows it is harmful to the baby to be up and awake at such a late hour. Daddy should contrive to get his hour with the baby in the morning when the baby should normally be awake and mildly interested in daddy's antics.

After the age of one year a baby may be allowed to be up until as late as 6 p. m., but never later than that. Up to the age of three years, 6 p. m. is zero hour for every well-loved, well-cared-for baby.

Babies should sleep 16 to 18 hours out of the 24 in the first six months; 14 to 15 hours at the age of one year (11 to 12 hours at night, 2 or 3 hours in two naps in the daytime). At 2 years of age 13 to 14 hours sleep may be enough.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Microphobia.
Do you consider it dangerous to use telephones in large offices where a great many persons use the phones? Is so, would it be advisable to have the mouth-piece and receiver washed with a disinfectant solution every day? (C. W.)

Answer—No. When telephone instruments are to be cleaned plain soap and water is as effective as any disinfectant or germicide can be.

Prevention of Scar.
Four months ago daughter suffered lacerations about cheek in an automobile accident. Eight stitches were taken immediately. The wounds are well healed now but have left bad marks. What can I put on to make the scars fade or to prevent permanent scarring? (Mrs. B. C. E.)

Answer—I advise you to keep hands off and leave the treatment to the physician. In the repair of such wounds the outcome depends largely on the skill of the surgeon. For instance, it may be better to avoid stitches through the skin to remove stitches in a day or two after the first aid treatment. No remedy is known which will prevent scar or dissolve it. Fortune-Telling Easy and Fun; a Clever Way to Amuse Friends

WHAT DO THE CARDS PROMISE YOU?

"Is the king of clubs the man in my life?" asks Kit, all-a-twitter over the exciting fortune you're laying out for her.

"Perhaps," you mysteriously reply. Certainly Kit is going to meet an interesting dark-haired man, a wee bit mature and sophisticated. The queen of hearts, Kit's name card is looking right at him. On her other side is the ace of diamonds, which means an engagement ring soon.

The crowd's spellbound. With simple tips and a little practice on yourself, you're a hit. Confidently you go on, explaining that the nine of spades means a trip and—in such a romantic set-up—what could it mean but a wedding trip?

The five of hearts promises good news in a letter. The two of clubs, a cheerful day. The six of diamonds says Kit will find money, the jack, a gift from a light-haired man.

Some mishap will cause her to

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correctly phrased. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield in care The Atlanta Constitution.

Dear Miss Chatfield: What can a girl do when her boss is rude to her before other people in the office? I am a lady of education and refinement and have always treated my boss with courtesy and respect; except when he flares up at me. Then I fire back with the same sort of ammunition—an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth. My work is such that it demands intelligence and I have done it with satisfaction to him, but these little rifts occur more and more frequently, which does not make for a pleasant office atmosphere. Won't you tell me how I can teach him better manners? PETTERBUD.

Answer: Sister, those little exceptions to which you refer: the temperish backfires at the boss, seal your doom to be treated disrespectfully by him. It's not an easy matter to make a gentleman out of a boorish man; but however cruel he is, he's likely to be consistently courteous to a lady who never forgets her manners with him.

The best ammunition you can use in shooting your boss when he takes a pot shot at you before people, is a dignified silence. There's no bluff like it. Silence can sting more sharply than words and it leaves the offending party tongue-tied. When you have tried this method of combating his bad manners you will find him much more respectful to you.

We all know from experience that there are some people we dare not take a liberty with. However mad they make us, we hold our peace in their presence. We save our best manners for these people and always keep the polite front turned toward them. Why? Because they never break through their dignity and reserve with us. They are invariably polite, formally polite and so are we—with them.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Dear Miss Chatfield: Will you please tell me what is best for a husband who works hard to try to have a peaceful home, when his wife is always wanting clothes and entertainment. I do everything in my power to please her and when she can't get what she wants, she goes back to her mother and dad and starts going with other men. When she has worn out all her clothes she comes back to me just long enough to get me in debt for more clothes. She never lets up on wanting things we can't afford. Now please advise me what to do. BROKEN-HEARTED HUSBAND.

Answer: Simply enough, be a man instead of a sissy; assert yourself and tell your wife that from here out she must stay on her job; live within your means, cut out the side dates and show you some consideration. Otherwise you will lose your self-respect, your wife and your bank account.

Then make a clean breast of your financial situation; let her understand what your total income is and what it must cover before clothes and other luxuries can be bought. A selfish, headstrong woman will take a man for a good thing so long as he meekly permits it, but even this sort of a woman knows the sound of her master's voice—if any.

Bridge Lit

By HAROLD SHARPSTEIN

STAB AT GAME.
Against an opening three-trump notrump overall should not be mistaken by partner a gigantic takeout double as it originally outlined and intended. Today it is a stab at game.

The overall is generally tempted with stopper in opponent's bid suit, a strong minor suit and at least ten control in the remaining suits.

A typical 1936 three notrump overall following an advance heart opening looks something like:
S—Q 10 7
H—K 9
D—A K Q 10 8 7
C—A 2

With a heart opening, this should take eight tricks . . . diamonds . . . one heart club. With partner turning with the king of clubs or the of spades, game at three notrump should be ice-cold.

This three notrump overall used chiefly when defending, is not vulnerable. When stretched to a break point this type of an overall is easily upset for severe penalties. There is, however, an escape to the long suit when the hand does not . . . if his do can be trusted.

ACTION BY PARTNER.

Notrump's partner should realize the hand cannot be covered on for having adequate support for any suit. Partner, therefore, should hesitate to disturb three notrump overall, expecting a break.

In defense to the three notrump overall, it is usually a favorable lead to open an unbid major with hopes of reaching original bidder's hand on the first lead. This proves especially effective when holding the ace of partner's bid suit. When successful in handing an entry into partner's hand, a return lead of his should develop a haul of set tricks.

Three notrump overalls opening one-bids are being tempted with the same type of hands, with perhaps the exchange of an ace for the king in opponent's suit, given in the example above.

'Til tomorrow—

DAYTIME FROCK WITH UNUSUAL YOKES

Here's a very new idea for casual type of sports frock you depend on so much during summertime. The shallow yoke with plenty of fullness makes pattern No. 1522-B becoming to women who ordinarily cannot wear a tailored frock; it's practically everybody's dress. Puff sleeves give the necks shoulder width that smartness, the skirt flares gently to a slim hipline.

Linen, chambray, gingham, shantung or sharkskin are choices for a dress of this type when you make it for summer. 1522-B is one of those satisfying patterns that adapt itself every season.

Barbara Bell pattern No. 1522-B is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. BRINGS 3 VALUABLE VITAMINS IN INEXPENSIVE FORM!

Each vitamin has its place in promoting good health. Vitamin A is plentiful in foods; O is present in fruit and vegetable juices; comparatively little is known about E. These vitamins are lacking in many refined foods. A O and O deficiency of Vitamin B may mean poor digestion, constipation, even nervous disorders. Without Vitamin G, skin, hair and nails fail to get proper nutrition. Too little Vitamin D impairs the structure of teeth and bones, decreases intestinal muscle-tone and resistance to infection. Yeast is the richest source of the yeast in Ray-D Tablets adds the important Vitamin D—an amount equal to 15 teaspoonfuls of ordinary cod liver oil in each tablet. Many doctors recognize Ray-D Tablets as a most economical source of these 3 vitamins... a food supplement to combat low vitality due to lack of Vitamin B, O and D. Each vitamin has its place in promoting good health. Vitamin A is plentiful in foods; O is present in fruit and vegetable juices; comparatively little is known about E. These vitamins are lacking in many refined foods. A O and O deficiency of Vitamin B may mean poor digestion, constipation, even nervous disorders. Without Vitamin G, skin, hair and nails fail to get proper nutrition. Too little Vitamin D impairs the structure of teeth and bones, decreases intestinal muscle-tone and resistance to infection. Yeast is the richest source of the yeast in Ray-D Tablets adds the important Vitamin D—an amount equal to 15 teaspoonfuls of ordinary cod liver oil in each tablet. Many doctors recognize Ray-D Tablets as a most economical source of these 3 vitamins... a food supplement to combat low vitality due to lack of Vitamin B, O and D. Mrs. William P. Hill Wins Individual Sweepstakes With 36 Points; Cherokee Garden Club in Lead for Grand Prize at Flower Show

By ANNIE LOU HARDY.

Mrs. William P. Hill, of the Peachtree Garden Club, won the individual sweepstakes award in the fourth annual flower show which opened yesterday for a two-day program at the Piedmont Driving Club under the auspices of the Atlanta Flower Show Association. Mrs. Hill will receive the perpetual Dunlap trophy for a total of 36 ribbons, 30 of which were blue and six red. Mrs. Willard McBurney, member of the Rose Garden Club and president of the Flower Show Association, was runner-up with 25 blue ribbons and eight red ribbons, making a total of 33.

The sweepstakes prize in interclub competition will be awarded today to the garden club winning the greatest number of blue ribbons, the 12 clubs competing in the show including the Boxwood, Cherokee, garden division of the Decatur Woman's Club, Habersham, Iris, Lullwater, Magnolia, Mimosa, Peachtree, Piedmont, Primrose and Rose. The Cherokee Garden Club was in the lead yesterday with the greatest number of points but additional classes will be judged today.

An interesting and unusual feature of the judging was the constructive criticism written by the judges on each classification ticket. If an arrangement lacked balance, for instance, that fact was noted. Or if the colors did not blend, better colors were suggested.

Mrs. Osborne Is Winner.
Mrs. J. D. Osborne, of the Cherokee Garden Club, won the horticultural achievement award for a collection of six hybrid tea roses, including the Conqueror, Hinrich Gaede, Sister Theresa, Duquesa de Penaranda, McGreedy's Yellow and the Mrs. G. A. Van Rossen varieties.

The award for the best rose in the show went to Mrs. Willard McBurney, of the Rose Garden Club, for an exquisite Queen Mary, one of the pink varieties.

The Cherokee Garden Club, of which Mrs. Grady Black is president, came in for one of the most important awards in the show, that of the spring border, with perennials predominating. Mesdames Arthur Clarke, Glenn Ryman, Andrew Nicolson and Julian Harrison arranged the exhibit. The Habersham Club exhibit, arranged by Mrs. Charles Currie and Mrs. Walter DuPre, won the second prize in the spring border class, with the Primrose Club coming in third place with the exhibit done by Mesdames John Baldwin, Fred Patterson, H. H. McCall and Harold Colegate. The Piedmont Club won honorable mention, with credit going to Mrs. Wright Bryan and Miss Isabel Johnston for the lovely exhibit.

These exhibits were attractively placed on the club terrace, with garden tables arranged in front of the spring borders and forming another class in the show. The Cherokee Club's table, arranged by Mrs. Clarke Howell Jr., also won first prize in this class, with the Piedmont Club's table, done by Mrs. Murray Shoun, coming in for second honors. Third prize went to the Boxwood Club table, the arrangement of which was the work of Mrs. Dan Conklin and Mrs. Augustus Black.

Men's Club Exhibit.
Another exhibit on the terrace that attracted much attention was that of the Men's Garden Club. Both practical and attractive, it displayed to advantage the art of pruning by means of clever and ingenious placards. It was arranged by Frank Lee, Jimmy Henderson and Tom Fleming, of the Men's Club.

In the class devoted to the best club collection of 12 species of blossoms, the Peachtree Garden Club won first honors, with credit going to Mrs. Valeria Manley, Mrs. Jesse Draper and Mrs. Andrew Calhoun. The second or red ribbon went to the Habersham Club, with Mrs. Clem Powers taking the honors. The yellow ribbon was awarded to the Boxwood Club, with Mesdames Joseph Brennan, Davant Lawton, Hugh Nunnally and Francis Gilbert contributing the exhibit. In the occasional table class in the interclub competition, the blue ribbon went to the Piedmont Club, with Mrs. John O. Chiles and Mrs. J. P. Garlington arranging the exhibit. The red ribbon was awarded to the Boxwood Club, with Mrs. Joel Hunter Jr., in charge, and the yellow ribbon to the Lullwater Club, for Mrs. Harvey Payne's table. The Mimosa Club received honorable mention for Mrs. Richard Johnston's arrangement.

The flower arrangement class, staged on three levels, and limited to the members of the club, was one of the most interesting features of the show, the exhibits lining one wall of the club ballroom. The Mimosa Club, with Mrs. Vaughn Nixon and Mrs. Everett Strupper in charge of the exhibit, was awarded first prize in this class. Mrs. Hal Hentz and Mrs. Warner Martin won second honors for the Habersham Club, and Mrs. Willard McBurney's arrangement for the Rose Garden Club won third. Receiving honorable mention were the exhibits of Mrs. Henry Thompson, of the Cherokee Club, and Mrs. W. C. Jackson, of the Lullwater Club.

Another flower arrangement open to club competition was that in which shadows completed the design. The Piedmont Club took the blue ribbon in this class for Mrs. Emory Cooke's arrangement. Second honors went to Mrs. Herbert Oliver's exhibit for the Iris Club, and third to Mrs. Arthur Tufts' arrangement for the Peachtree Garden Club.

Lining another wall of the ballroom were large arrangements suitable to be repeated for chintz or printed linen pattern. These effective arrangements featured white flowers in white containers against a plum-colored background. First award in this class went to the Rose Garden Club for Mrs. Willard McBurney's exhibit; second to the Boxwood Club, with Mrs. H. Holland and Mrs. Adeline W. Grant in charge of arrangement, and third to the Habersham Club with Mrs. Douglas Wright taking the honors. Mrs. Alvin Cates' exhibit won honorable mention for the Iris Club in this class.

Mrs. Walter Lamb arranged the Magnolia Club's exhibit which took the blue ribbon, with artistic arrangement of flowers. Mrs. Shelton winning the red ribbon for the Mimosa Club. The yellow ribbon was awarded to the Iris Club, with Mrs. E. Pomeroy and Mrs. Davis Thornton, in charge of the arrangement. Mrs. William Huger's exhibit for the Cherokee Club received honorable mention.

Engle's arrangement for the Cherokee Club, Mrs. Shelton winning the red ribbon for the Mimosa Club. The yellow ribbon was awarded to the Iris Club, with Mrs. E. Pomeroy and Mrs. Davis Thornton, in charge of the arrangement. Mrs. William Huger's exhibit for the Cherokee Club received honorable mention for the Habersham Club.

MR. ZERO

By PATRICIA WENTWORTH

INSTALLMENT XXVI

"Keep right on saying it," said Mr. Zero, and rang off.

Sylvia, turning round with an expression of relief, was met by a demanding look from Gay and a quick "Who was that?" The relief faded.

"He wanted to know about the letters, too. I told him I didn't know."

"Sylvia, who was it? Who were you speaking to? Who asked you about the letters?"

"It was Mr. Zero," said Sylvia. Her voice began confidently and then shook. It shook most on the name.

"Mr. Zero?"

Gay had a startled look.

"You ought to tell them at once. They ought to find out where the call came from."

But Sylvia shook her head.

"Oh, no," she said.

"Sylvia!"

"He wouldn't like it at all," said Sylvia with conviction.

Gay looked, opened her mouth to speak, shut it again, and ran out of the room downstairs and into the study. The three officers who were there all turned to look at her.

She stood with the open door in her hand and said, with the words tripping over each other, "He's just called her up! He's been talking to her—on the telephone—Mr. Zero! So it couldn't be Algy—you must see that it couldn't be Algy if he's just been talking to Sylvia on the telephone!"

Colonel Anstruther said, "Bless my soul!" and Mr. Brook said, "Won't you please come in and shut the door, Miss Hardwicke, and sit down and tell us what you mean?"

She came in, and the door fell to with a bang.

At any time in the past 15 years it would have been impossible for Sturrock to jump. He climbed in at the back and closed the door noiselessly behind him. A man of weight, a man of dignity, a man who certainly would not walk for choice, Algy wondered where he was bound for, and said without turning round, "Well, where can I drop you? Colebrook?"

"If you are not going any farther, sir."

"Railing any good to you?"

"I shall be very grateful, sir. I was afraid I might have missed the bus, but I shall get one back all right. It's my half day, and there seemed no reason why I should stay in. I mentioned it to the inspector."

"I'm afraid I didn't," said Algy.

Sturrock pursued the subject in an earnest, painstaking manner.

"The inspector said it would be quite all right, sir. But I shall not be taking the full time. There is a bus at half past four—I should be in the house again before 5 o'clock. I told the inspector that such was my intention. I told him I shouldn't feel comfortable about being out of the house for long—not in the circumstances." William has only been there a short time, and, as I said to the inspector, if there was to be any emergency it would be beyond him, especially after last night."

Algy was profoundly bored with Sturrock's scruples. Railing was, mercifully, only four miles away. He dropped the butler in the market place, and as he drove out of the square on the farther side, his driving mirror showed him a blue suit and a bowler hat disappearing within the doors of the Hand and Flower. If the walls had been transparent, he would presently have seen them excoined within a telephone booth, the bowler hat pushed back, the eyes beneath its brim intent, watchful and aware.

Algy Somers got back to Cole Lester at half past 4. Mr. Paterson, Sir Francis Colesborough's solicitor, had arrived, and the business of opening the safe was going forward in the study behind closed doors. It fell therefore to Algy to receive Mr. Montagu Lushington when he arrived at about a quarter to 5. He had Mr. Brewster with him, and explained that they were on their way back to town. "And I must say, Algy, that you have a singular knack of getting into the limelight. Why you had to get yourself mixed up in a murder case at this juncture! Heaven knows there's enough talk already. I'll see Brook, but things will just have to take their course. I hope Lady Colesborough won't think we're intruding. I suppose she is keeping to her room."

Algy said he didn't think Sylvia would come down. He supposed that someone would bring them some tea. They were in the drawing room, and to the drawing room, upon the strike of 5 tea was borne processionally by Sturrock and two attendant footmen. They thought the butler had cut his afternoon uncommon short.

He centred a "Got your bus all right, Sturrock," and received a glance of dignified rebuke, and a quiet, "Yes, thank you, sir."

Neither Gay nor Sylvia appeared, but presently Colonel Anstruther and Mr. Paterson came in, from which Algy deduced that the business of clearing the safe had been dispatched. If he expected any information he was disappointed.

Colonel Anstruther drank several cups of tea, all scalding hot, and half emptied the sugar bowl without perceptibly sweetening his temper. Mr. Paterson, who only drank hot water and refused to food rather as if he suspected it of being poisoned, was quite as uncommunicative. Algy thought he had never seen an elderly gentleman in a worse temper.

Monty discoursed upon migratory birds, a perfectly safe subject in which no one took any interest.

There was a moment when Mr. Paterson broke his ferocious silence to observe that the country was an unendurable place in winter and it passed his comprehension how any civilized man could endure it.

There was a moment when Mr. Brewster, in a desire to make harmless conversation, addressed himself with an air of diffidence to the company at large.

"It's a pity that the evenings are still so dark. If it had been lighter, I should have been so much interested in seeing the grounds. There is a famous yew hedge, is there not?"

Algy gazed almost reverentially at the unconscious Cyril.

"There is certainly a yew hedge," he murmured.

"You mean?" Mr. Brewster raised anxious eyebrows.

"Oh lord, yet, man! That's where Colesborough was shot!"

"Indeed? I had no idea." The embarrassed tone faded out.

Montague Lushington went on talking about birds.

It was over at last. Colonel Anstruther and Mr. Paterson withdrew, presumably to the study. Mr. Lushington expressed a wish to see Mr. Brook, who presently appeared. Algy Somers and Cyril Brewster left the room.

Continued Tomorrow.

RECORDS OF SPEED.
IV—Birds in Flight.

"As swift as a swallow!" That is an old saying, and it is a good one. Swallows are fast-flying birds, although by no means the fastest members of the bird world.

Before speaking of the speed leaders, I'd like to take up some of the birds which do not travel very rapidly. These include quite a few of the songbirds which gladden the springtime.

The mile-a-minute birds include cackling geese, teal, mallards, crows and pheasants. Speeds of from 65 to 72 miles per hour have been made by pintails, swifts, golden plovers and canvasbacks.

The common swallow seems to be the fastest flyer among the small birds. A record of one of them puts its speed at 106 miles per hour. Tree swallows, bank swallows and barn swallows, however, do not fly nearly so fast as that. Their speeds range from 25 to 45 miles per hour.

Most of the figures I have given are from a chart prepared by the American Museum of Natural History. The speeds were measured by observers in motorboats, trains, automobiles and airplanes.

The chart gives the speed of the golden eagle as 120 miles an hour. That is more than two miles per minute, but the speed of the duck hawk is said to be the greatest of all—180 miles an hour, or three miles per minute. This hawk also has the name of "peregrine falcon."

TARZAN THE FEARLESS

No. 88

Rarely did the Jungle Lord act on impulse, but the cruel treatment of the girl was more than he could endure. Down from the trees he dropped. He was half-surprised himself at this unwary, impetuous action. But now that he was here, there was no retreat.

He leaped for Mary, hoping to seize her and leap toward her, but the blacker could stop him. But the sudden appearance of the Tree Demon stirred them to instant action. One of the warriors thrust his spear. Tarzan clutched it and wrenched it from his hand.

"The Demon! The Demon! the tribesman shouted; 'The Demon is ours! Kill him! He can't escape now!' Their certainty seemed well-founded, for never was Tarzan in a more dangerous position. From every side the warriors lunged at him with their spears.

Tarzan dozed beneath one thrust; another he countered with his own shaft. Only his lightning swiftness had saved him thus far. Now a warrior in front drove at him. Tarzan felled him. At the same moment, another assailant aimed a death blow from behind!

JURY CLEARS DECKS FOR GRAFT INQUIRY

New Body Expected To Swing Into Action at 10 O'Clock This Morning.

With the decks cleared of routine business, the new Fulton county grand jury will swing into an investigation of law enforcement graft at 10 o'clock this morning.

Solicitor General John A. Boykin is expected to conduct the first part of the special inquiry. Approximately 30 witnesses have been summoned.

Assistant Solicitor E. E. Andrews, who acted as special prosecutor during the past grand jury investigation of graft, will be in charge following conclusion of the hearing on his application to revoke the five-year suspended sentence of R. P. (Dick) Moore, ex-big shot lottery operator who pleaded guilty last October.

The jury yesterday was understood to have laid an outline for procedure of the graft inquiry. More indictments against city policemen are expected. Chief M. A. Hornsby Monday predicted at least six policemen would be indicted. He conferred Tuesday with Andrews and Boykin.

Colonel B. L. Bugg, president, A. B. & C. railroad, was elected grand jury foreman and John Sikes, salesman, Southern Buick, Inc., was named secretary.

Royal Marriage Receives Blessing Of Wilhelm II

DOORN, THE NETHERLANDS, May 4.—(AP)—Prince Louis Ferdinand, of Germany, and the Grand Duchess Kyra, of Russia, began their honeymoon today with the blessing of Ex-Kaiser Wilhelm II. Their bonds of marriage were completed with a Protestant ceremony at the Doorn residence of the exiled German emperor after two services—a civil ceremony and the ritual of the bride's orthodox Russian church—Monday at Potsdam, Germany.

The fallen emperor, white haired but looking much the same as when he ruled Germany, welcomed the Romanoff Grand Duchess Kyra into his house—that of the proud Hohenzollerns—and gave a kindly word of advice to the bridegroom, his favorite grandson.

"My dear Louis Ferdinand," the 79-year-old former Kaiser said, "you have a task to fulfill. You can fulfill it only with the help of God. Under His blessing and with strong belief in His son, our Master, I hope you will build your house."

"Work with all your might to honor God, to the honor of our house and to the honor of our German fatherland, and be an example to your people."

"God be with you both. He will give you His blessing. We raise our glasses and drink to luck to the wedded couple."

CO-EDS LEARN LESSON IN HORSE DRIVING

Co-eds at the University of Nevada hitched a horse to an old time buggy and started to drive their classes. On the way, they were unable to ascertain why the buggy always kept running into the horse, as automobiles have never acted that way.

Old-timers intervened, explained that the breeching was not right, readjusted it, and the co-eds scratched up a new mark on their university credits.
